Re-Appraisal to Boost County Tax Valuations

AUDITOR SEES INCREASE OF FIVE PER CENT

Says Higher Figures Due to Improvements; Boost Here May Reach 10 Per Cent.

FEW RURAL CHANGES DUE

Work to Take 5 More Months; Re-appraisal to Bring In $35,000 More Revenue.

Re-appraisal of Richland county real estate, which is little more than half completed, will boost county tax valuations approximately 5 per cent, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe predicted today.

The re-appraisal, required under a state law, is the first in seven years and is being made by the regular staff at the county auditor's office.

Shelby Higher, Too.

The increase in valuations, which Wolfe said is due to property improvements during the past seven years, may range as high as 8 or 10 per cent in Mansfield and Shelby, he added. Few changes are expected in the county's rural areas.

Basing figures on the present real estate valuation of $50,000,000 in Mansfield, the increase will mean about $35,000 more in real estate levies in the city annually, beginning in 1939, the auditor said.

"The real estate valuation has been jumped from 15 per cent since the last re-appraisement, and valuations now are generally at the lowest point in many years," Wolfe said.

Saves County $30,000.

Although much more time will be required to complete the re-appraisal work without the employing of a special staff, the county will save more than $30,000 by confining the duties to regular employes, Wolfe declared.

All residental property in Mansfield, except a part of the Fifth ward, has been checked and three appraisers are now at work in Shelby.

Wolfe estimated that five more months will be required to check the industrial concerns and downtown properties in Mansfield and the county's rural sections. Re-appraisal was started early last summer.

"Following completion of the re-appraisement, new values will be posted and property holders will be permitted to examine the figures and file protests if they consider them too high," the auditor said.

EPPLEY QUITS

Liquor Board Chairman Takes Job With Private Concern.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—George Eppley, chairman of the Ohio liquor control board, resigned today, effective at once, to take a position with a liquor concern.

Financial consideration dictated his resignation, Eppley said.

It was rumored in official circles today that Lowell C. Bodey of Urbana, a board member, would be promoted to the chairmanship.

Eppley, whose home is in Cleveland, is a Democrat. His term would have expired in February, 1939. Bodey also is a Democrat.

Wellington T. Leonard, Mansfield, and Edith McClure Patterson, Dayton, Republican members of the board.

SLAIN BY SON

Detective Killed Following Tiff With Youth, 27.

ERIE, Pa.—(AP)—Louis Scalise, 51-year-old ace detective of the Erie police department, died today of five bullet wounds. Acting Chief of Police William Donahue said the shots were fired by Scalise's 27-year-old son, Ralph, a fingerprint operator.

The acting chief said the father left a note criticising Ralph as "a lazy son" and that this precipitated the fight.

ASA PLANK

HALF CENTURY ON RAILS ENDS

Asa Plank, Veteran Pennsy Engineer, Retires at 68 With Record Intact.

When train No. 452 steams into the Pennsylvania passenger depot at 4:16 p. m. today, Asa Plank, 68, veteran pilot of the road, will climb down from the cab of his engine with the reluctance of a man who leaves an old friend. For the past 17 years train No. 452 has roared over the rails between Detroit and Mansfield with Plank at the throttle.

Today Plank winds up nearly 50 years of railroading. Since he started as a fireman he has piloted his engine over 1,122,000 miles or a distance equal to five times around the world, he leaves the service with a record of bringing his train in "on time" more times than any other engineer in this division.

Starting to work as a youth of 18 on July 17, 1888, Plank served as a fireman out of Toledo for nine years. In 1897 he was promoted to engineer, and on March 1, 1920 he took his first regular run between Detroit and Mansfield. It was in the fall of the same year that Plank, who is the second oldest engineer in the point of service in this division, moved from Toledo to Mansfield. He now resides with his wife at 31 Florence avenue.

Plank not only holds the record of having brought his run of 10 passenger coaches and a mail and baggage car in "on time," but he also has only one blemish on his service record. That was only a minor accident resulting from a switch that was slow in opening several years ago.

He escaped a serious crack-up on one occasion because it was his day off. The engineer who took his place was killed in an accident at Toledo junction.

Weighing 260 pounds and standing six feet, Plank has been eligible to operate the crack Red Arrow limited, Pennsylvania flyer which goes through Mansfield, for a number of years but has declined.

Plank is retiring to go on pension because of his desire to "turn the job over to a younger man." He plans to drive to Florida and vacation until spring.

LEAVES $5,000 FOR HAYESVILLE

Cincinnati Doctor Wills Money For School Athletic Field.

A bequest of $5,000, providing for a new athletic field at the Hayesville school, was left in the will of Dr. William C. Kendig, former resident of Hayesville who died five days ago in Cincinnati.

The will, which was filed yesterday in Hamilton county probate court, directs that $1,000 be spent to purchase ground near the school and leaves $1,500 for the construction of a shelter house. The remainder is to be used for maintenance of the field.

Dr. Kendig, who died Christmas day, was a neurologist and served as alienist in the Hamilton county probate court.

COAL STRIKERS ADD TO PARIS LABOR TENSION

1,000 Miners Quit Jobs After Government Settles Public Service Tie-Up.

LASTED FOR 24 HOURS

Service Workers Return as Premier Threatens to Call Them For Army Duty.

PARIS—(AP)—A new outbreak of strikes in the rich mining region of northern France intensified the turbulent situation today after firm government action brought quick settlement of the critical public service tie-up in Paris.

A thousand coal miners at Anzin, near Valenciennes, quit work this morning in protest against discharge of three miners.

Strike Spread Feared.

This stoppage aroused official concern lest the strike spread among all of the 16,000 miners employed by the Anzin company. Local government officials sought to negotiate a settlement.

Premier Camille Chautemps' threat to call striking public service workers, most of whom are army reservists, to the colors, caused prompt submission to his demands for settlement of the Paris strike, which threatened to undermine the People's Front government.

Minister of Labor Andre Fevrier was trying to negotiate the [illegible] truckers, warehouses and the Goodrich Rubber company plant.

Six hundred sailors at Rouen, whose recent walkout tied up 35 ships, continued on strike.

The agreement to call off the Paris public service strike came in the early hours of the morning after labor delegates had shuttled back and forth between their own meetings and government offices throughout the night.

The strikers, 120,000 strong, were notified to return to their jobs soon after daybreak. The city's 12 subway and bus lines started carrying passengers again at 6 a. m.

Hailed As Triumph.

Settlement of the strike when it had been in effect less than 24 hours was hailed in political circles as a triumph for the Radical-Socialist premier of the People's Front regime, whose threat to mobilize the workers as members of the French army was credited with breaking the workers' resistance.

DAVEY REPLIES

Tells Duffy He'll Be 'Glad' to Testify at Inquiry.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Gov. Martin L. Davey today informed Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy that he would be glad to appear next week before a special grand jury investigating the Ohio parole system.

"The governor particularly requests that you make public any testimony that he may give," John Caren, executive secretary to Davey, wrote Duffy.

"Governor Davey is going home for New Year and will return to Columbus on Monday. He will communicate with you at that time and set the definite date for his appearance."

Girl, 12, Has 10-Pound Son; Boy, 13, Says He's Father

Child-Mother Sits Beside Doll Cradle, Fondling Baby While Indiana Officials Halt Marriage Plans.

LINTON, Ind.—(U.P.)—Betty June Lacer, 12, sat beside her doll's cradle today and fondly caressed her ten and one-half pound son, but considered unhappily the prospect that she and the child's father, Tommy Chapman, 13, will not be permitted to marry.

The baby, named Thomas Howard Chapman Lacer, was born Tuesday. Both children said they wanted to marry. Their parents have approved the match.

Taken to Court.

Tommy readily admitted his responsibilities when he was brought before Circuit Judge J. Raymond Powell yesterday on a statutory charge.

"All I want is a chance to marry her," he said.

But Judge Powell said the marriage would be impossible because Indiana law forbids any girl under 16 years of age, even with the consent of her parents, to become a bride. He took the case under advisement.

"Maybe," Tommy said, "I could take her to one of those states where they let you marry young."

That plan was blocked because Judge Powell ordered him re-

SALES DECLINE

1,044 Ohio Stores Report Drop of 12½ Per Cent.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Retail sales of 1,044 independent stores in Ohio dropped 12½ per cent in dollar volume in November as compared with the corresponding month of 1936, the department of commerce reported today.

Columbus showed the least sales decrease of the large cities, 3.2 per cent, and Cincinnati was next with a 4.1 per cent drop.

CAMDEN, N. J.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Sarah Frazier called her doctor last night and told him to hurry. Mrs. Daisy Williams called her doctor and gave him the same message. Both arrived at West Jersey hospital shortly after 7 p. m.

One hour and five minutes later Mrs. Frazier gave birth to a boy, weighing 6½ pounds.

Fifteen minutes later Mrs. Williams gave birth to a girl, weighing 5 pounds 13 ounces.

Seven minutes later Mrs. Williams gave birth to a boy, weighing 5 pounds, 5 ounces.

Ten minutes after Mrs. Frazier gave birth to another boy, weighing 6½ pounds.

All were doing well today.

PLANS $600,000 PROGRAM

LETS CONTRACT FOR O. S. R. HALL

State Awards Job to Columbus Firm For New Addition on Low Bid of $102,450.

The new dining hall and kitchen for the Mansfield reformatory was another step nearer realization today with the awarding of the construction contract by the state welfare department to the Skilken Bros. of Columbus for $102,450.

Associated Press dispatches from Columbus said the contract calls for the construction of the new addition at $16,000 below the state estimate for the project.

Specifications on which Arthur L. Glattke, reformatory superintendent, has been working with State Architect John O. Schooley, provide for the construction of a new dining hall and kitchen, with equipment for both, and a cold storage plant. Estimates prepared by state engineers on the total cost of the new building and equipment have been figured at $160,000.

The structure will be one story high and will be located just inside the west wall, near the main gate. Glattke said today that he had not received word from the state welfare department how soon the work would be started.

Under terms of the contract, a high board enclosure will be constructed to keep civilian workers away from the inmates.

Contracts have not yet been awarded on the bids for the equipment for the building which were opened two weeks ago.

STAR FIGHTS FOR SON'S CUSTODY

Barbara Stanwyck Opposes Fay's Petition for Court Order.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Barbara Stanwyck, movie actress and divorced wife of Frank Fay, opposes his petition for temporary custody of their 5-year-old adopted son, Dion, because, she says, Fay used profane language in the child's presence.

Miss Stanwyck testified in superior court yesterday that Fay once struck her on the chin, knocking her over a chair, because he objected to her attendance at a burlesque show.

Fay asked the court to fix specific times for him to visit the boy.

Banker Keeps Record of 60 Years As Host for Christmas Dinner Intact

Breakfast for Four In '87 Becomes Dinner for 25 This Year.

A CHRISTMAS morning breakfast for two young couples 60 years ago proved to be the beginning of an unusual family record which turned another page this year when S. A. Jennings, vice president of the Citizens National Bank and Trust company, presided at the annual family Christmas dinner at the Women's club.

Exactly 60 years ago Christmas, Mr. Jennings and his wife invited their cousins, Judge and Mrs. John Jenner, to their home on West Third street for a breakfast of buckwheat cakes and sausage. There were just four of them at the first gala occasion.

For years, the Christmas breakfast was repeated. As the children came, it became a family dinner, and always it was held at the Jennings home which was moved from West Third street to the present location, 248 Park avenue west, many years ago. Five years ago Mr. Jennings began having the family dinners at the Women's club, but he continued as host. Since the death of his wife four years ago, a daughter, Mrs. R. D. Cahall, of Gambier, has presided with him.

As the first generation of children grew up and married, the "in-laws" were taken into the family circle, and later their children joined the group, until this year there were 25 at the Christmas dinner.

There is always a Christmas tree to shed its gay light over the dinner, and until a few years ago there was always a Santa Claus who bore a striking resemblance to Mr. Jennings. He played the role of Santa at every dinner for 50 years, and his visits were discontinued only when the second generation of children grew a bit skeptical.

Mr. Jennings has been identified with the Citizens National bank for more than 50 years, and before that was associated with the Mansfield Savings bank. His career in banking circles of Mansfield having a record as long as the Christmas dinners over which the 84-year-old host still presides with genial hospitality.

U. S. Citizens See Panay's Fate In Film

Cameraman Tells About Bombing, Threatening Grave Situation.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The photographic story of the sinking of the U. S. S. Panay by Japanese bombs—a story of gallantly futile resistance before the Stars and Stripes sank with the stricken warcraft in the slow waters of the Yangtze—was put before the American public today.

It had a preview last night before a small group of picture executives and reporters, in a rough little projection room at a guarded Fort Lee, New Jersey, laboratory.

In a dispassionate monotone, Newsreel Cameraman Norman Alley explained his extraordinary pictorial record of a 20-minute incident across the world which threatened grave rupture between Washington and Tokyo until complete Japanese apologies were accepted by this government.

Pictures Described.

Here is the story as it emerged on the test projection screen, then upon Associated Press wirephoto machines for transmission to newspapers—and as it emerges today in some motion picture theaters.

The Panay, her flag folding out smartly, pulls away from Nanking with her tragic load of American refugees.

Two Japanese airplanes are seen far aloft; one seems to be diving toward the Panay.

("Here it is; here's the business," Alley mutters.)

There is a great outburst on the deck; seamen pop out one by one from the hold and race forward.

("That's where the emergency alarm was heard," says Alley.)

Men jump to the Panay's iron-shielded machine guns, grimacing, squinting. One, a boatswain's mate, has leaped to station so quickly that he has left his trousers behind. The machine guns did no damage.

Over astern—it looked less than 50 yards—a bomb drops, and the Yangtze throws up a great burst of water.

Next, fatally hit, the Panay keels, one of her deck partially awash. The lifeboats go over the side.

("That's the end," says Alley, to the extraordinary stillness of the projection room.)

Next, little boats are seen turning toward the bamboo-covered marshlands of the river bank. The

LEAVES OFFICE

McFarland Winds Up 2-Year Term as Mayor Tomorrow.

In less than 36 hours, Mayor Earl A. McFarland, who for the past two years has headed Mansfield's municipal government, will leave office and retire to private life.

Tomorrow at midnight his term expires and Council President Claude M. Hunter, Democrat, who was elected at the November election, becomes mayor. McFarland will return to the Hollibaugh-Wolfe, Inc., insurance agency of which he is vice president.

McFarland will be the only city official to relinquish his post tomorrow. Others in his administration, who turn over their jobs to the incoming appointees, will stay until Jan. 10. The new appointees will report Jan. 3 but will work without pay until Jan. 10 to familiarize themselves with their duties.

Among those who have been asked by McFarland, at the request of Mayor-Elect Hunter, to hold over until Jan. 10 are Service-Safety Director Philip Wolfe, Ralph A. Hughes, secretary of the water, sewer and garbage department; Arthur C. McMullen, superintendent of the waterworks department; Charles Hebel, superintendent of streets, and various employes in the departments.

HUNT 2 BODIES

Searchers Comb Lake Erie for Plane Crash Victims.

PORT CLINTON—(AP)—Search was resumed today for the bodies of Delbert Watkins, 30, of New Plymouth, and Albert Anderson, 45, of Sandusky, drowned yesterday when an airplane plunged into Lake Erie near Put-In-Bay.

The body of Mrs. Nancy Howard, 42, of Lexington, Ky., the third passenger, was recovered. William Somogy, 30, of Lorain, O., pilot, suffering from shock and exposure, was reported as improving.

FIND 6 OTHERS ABOARD

Federal Agents Wait Arrival of Craft to Probe Death of Hotel Owner.

SAN PEDRO, Cal.—(UP)—The little white yacht Aafje was towed through the Pacific by a coast guard cutter today, a ship of strange mystery and drama.

Her skipper, a wealthy hotel owner and sportsman, had been shot to death. She had drifted helplessly on the open sea for days. Her living—two men, three women, and a child—had probably been without food and water for a long period.

Arrives Tomorrow.

Also aboard the yacht were armed sailors of the coast guard cutter Perseus, which has her in tow and will bring her into this harbor at 4 a. m. Friday.

That, in its essence, was all that was known of the state of affairs aboard the Aafje. No further details came ashore through the Perseus' radio, which had sent this message:

"There's trouble aboard."

Federal Bureau of Investigation men waited for the arrival of the cutter and her tow. A crime on the high seas on a ship flying the American flag is a federal offense, and the agents presumed that a crime had been committed.

The dead man was Dwight Faulding, who owned the Faulding vessel at Santa Barbara. Two dead men, [illegible] board the Aafje found his body, punctured by several bullets, on the foredeck.

All indications were that he had not shot himself. There was no indication when he had been shot. He may have been dead for days.

Survivors Listed.

The living aboard were:

Mrs. Gertrude Turner and her son, Robert Tufor, 8, of Goleta, Cal.; Mrs. Jack Morgan, wife of a former naval officer, Los Angeles; Miss Elsie Berdan, Los Angeles; George Sternack, Los Angeles; Robert Horn, Los Angeles.

Morgan was believed to have chartered the yacht from Owner Faulding and to have engaged him as skipper. But the passengers' names wirelessed by the Perseus did not include his.

The Aafje, a schooner yacht with a motor auxiliary, not equipped with radio, was chartered for a two-day trip around Catalina

Hunted Son Kills Self When Mother Summons Sheriff

BONNE TERRE, Mo.—(U.P.)—Marvin Wright's mother weighed her love for him against her duty to the law, and summoned Sheriff A. A. Bayles. As he mounted the steps of the Wright farmhouse near here, the 24-year-old Marvin killed himself with a shotgun.

Mother and son last night had a long talk about the kidnaping Monday of Kelly Robertson, 46-year-old Desiodge, Mo., real estate dealer. The sheriff had arrested one of Marvin's friends, Everett Cochran, 16, of Esther, Mo., and it was said that he had confessed and named Marvin as his accomplice.

At first, Mrs. Wright learned nothing. Then Marvin suddenly confessed that he and Everett abducted Robertson and held him captive all night.

"I will not uphold you in your meanness," Mrs. Wright said. "I am going to notify the sheriff."

Marvin stared at her, and replied:

"When you send for the sheriff, tell him to bring an ambulance with him."

Mrs. Wright sent for Sheriff Bayles. Marvin fled to the attic.

As Bayles mounted the steps, there was a blast. The sheriff rushed into the attic and found the youth dead.

Insurgents, Loyalists In Bitter Clash Near Teruel

BATTLE SEEN AS BIGGEST OF CIVIL WAR

Government's Troops Claim Thousands Trapped By Encircling Movement.

HENDAYE, FRENCH SPANISH FRONTIER —(UP)— Spanish nationalists and loyalists clashed on a 25-mile front outside Teruel today in what may prove to be the biggest battle of the civil war.

Nationalists asserted that in the opening phase of the battle they broke through loyalist lines northwest of Teruel for a gain of 1¼ miles. They said also that the loyalist left wing was threatened with disaster by a nationalist turning movement.

Claim Fascists Lose.

Loyalists, admitting that the nationalists had started a big scale attack, asserted that two thrusts at their lines were thrown back with heavy losses.

Manuel Casares, United Press correspondent with the nationalists, telegraphed from Zaragoza, the great nationalist base in the northeast, that in the battle both sides were using every kind of weapon they possessed.

Hundreds of tanks, massed artillery, big plane fleets and enormous quantities of machine guns and late-type automatic rifles were involved, Casares reported.

A nationalist general commanding one of the columns sent to relieve the besieged garrison of Teruel wired to Zaragoza that the battle might develop into the most decisive of the war.

The nationalists were trying to cut through direct to Teruel, to relieve their men holding out in two groups of buildings, and to smash the loyalist wings.

Report Troops Trapped.

Loyalist, the Zaragoza dispatch said, spread out their right wing in an effort to prevent the nationalists from turning it. But at the same time the nationalists began an encircling movement against the left wing and believed they had trapped thousands of men in it.

Nationalist reports to the frontier were that 60 of their airplanes bombed loyalist positions, loyalists, on the contrary, reported that their own planes had held off the insurgent attacking planes and had driven them back to their bases.

AUTO HITS TRAIN

Findlay Contractor, Injured In Crash at Willard.

A Findlay man was confined to the Willard Municipal hospital today suffering from head injuries, while a Warren motorist escaped possible injuries in two auto accidents near Mansfield and Willard yesterday afternoon and early today.

Charles Elmore, 62, a Findlay contractor, is in the Willard hospital suffering from lacerations about the head, and concussion of the brain, sustained at 7:30 a. m. today when his machine hit the side of a moving B. & O. freight train, one mile south of Willard on U. S. route 224.

Elmore was taken to the hospital by a passing motorist. He was en route to Cleveland when the accident occurred. It is believed that he did not see the freight train because of darkness. His car was demolished.

George W. Hackett of Warren escaped possible injury when his car turned over on route 42, five miles south of Ashland, about 2 p. m. Wednesday. Hackett told Highway Patrolman L. A. Alexander that a tire blowout caused his car to overturn.

'Boy Wonder' of Wall Street Dies In N. Y. Prison

OSSINING, N. Y.—(AP)—Harold Russell Ryder, "boy wonder" of Wall Street, is dead from a heart attack two weeks after he had been returned to Sing Sing prison. He was 41.

Four years of freedom on parole from a 1930 larceny sentence had ended Dec. 13, when he entered the prison to serve from 12 to 17 years. He had admitted parole violation.

Known as a Broadway playboy, Ryder was reported to have tossed $1,000 bills in the laps of entertainers.

The former Wall Street runner who pyramided a shoestring to $15,000,000 pleaded guilty in 1930 to larceny of $95,452 which he had received to purchase stocks.

EXPENSE ACCOUNTS PADDED FOR DAVEY CAMPAIGN, PROBERS HOLD

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Testimony that a state liquor department employe maintained Lorain county campaign headquarters in 1936 for Gov. Martin L. Davey while collecting fradulent expense accounts was recorded today by the senate's graft-investigating committee.

After Joseph Maiden, jr., Canton district supervisor for the liquor monopoly, acknowledged he received payment for a series of receipts for hotel room rentals, the committee heard testimony:

That one receipt was "raised" from $2 to $32.

That others bore signatures not in the handwriting of hotel employes purportedly signing them; and

That Maiden was not registered in the hostelries on whose receipts he collected reimbursement for the periods stated.

Three Canton hotel operators from whom the receipts were supposed to have emanated—William L. Brett, his son Lyman, and Thomas J. Jackson—denied in turn the authenticity of the vouchers.

Totaling more than $200, the allegedly fraudulent receipts covered rentals for August to November, 1936.

James Metzenbaum, committee counsel, then called Alphonso N. Merritt, manager, and Edna L. Kuhlman, secretary, of Lorain's Antlers hotel, and they testified that Maiden paid $93 rent for two rooms used for Davey campaign headquarters from Oct. 7 to Nov 4, 1936.

"Isn't it a fact that you submitted these fraudulent hotel bills from Canton to cover up your electioneering in Lorain?" Metzenbaum asked the liquor supervisor, 32-year-old former pugilist and former Lorain county deputy sheriff.

"Absolutely not," replied Maiden. He answered "I'm sure I don't know" to Metzenbaum's repeated demands to "explain" the preceding testimony.

Governor Davey earlier asked both houses of the assembly to meet Monday night to hear his message requesting a sweeping investigation, by a nine-member commission, of "everything and everybody, including some senators."

SPARKS FLY AS JACKSON LEADS DRIVE FOR CURB

Attorney General's Aid Puts Blame For Recession on U. S. Business.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Monopolistic business is under New Deal fire today preliminary to a 1938 drive for greater government restraint on large concentrations of industrial-financial power.

Political and economic sparks are flying as Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson expands President Roosevelt's last fireside chat denunciation of "private monopolies and financial olligarchies."

May Rally Deserters.

This strategy may rally deserting New Deal troops to Mr. Roosevelt's standard and, more debatable, make Jackson a political figure of presidential proportions by 1940. Many liberal or progressives scattered with conservatives when administration ranks were broken during this year's judiciary re-organization conflict. Notable deserter was Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D., Wyo., whose bill to curb monopoly by requiring federal license of interstate corporations now is reported to have Mr. Roosevelt's favor. The 1938 anti-monopoly platform is one on which might be reformed some of the progressive leadership which bolted the president in 1937.

How fast Mr. Roosevelt will move is not yet evident. His strategy might delay the anti-monopoly drive until some of the pending business, wage-hours, crop surplus control, regional planning and such has been disposed of.

On Dec. 28 Jackson let go a radio charge that big business precipitated recession by price increases beyond the power of consumers to purchase. He attacked again yesterday in Philadelphia with the complaint that big money in the United States is on strike to "whack concessions out of government."

Almost calling names, Jackson yesterday accused "America's dominant families" of keeping control of industry in the hands of comparatively incompetent inheritors of industrial and financial wealth. He defended labor and its demands for higher wages against responsibility for recession and cited increases in General Motors' executive salaries in three years.

Washington is bubbling now with rumors that Mr. Roosevelt wants Jackson to run for governor of New York next year and possibly for president in 1940 on the New Deal-Democratic ticket.

HELD INSANE

Grafton Sex-Slayer Suspect Committed to Lima.

ELYRIA—(AP)—Alexander Maneff, 23, charged with the sex slaying of 19-year-old Louise Hornbeck in nearby Grafton Oct. 18, was found insane today by a court of three judges. He was ordered committed to the Lima state hospital.

Judge D. A. Cook, one of the three hearing the case, said in a formal statement that the court found Meneff "not sane now" and that the West Homestead, Pa., hitchhiker was to remain in the Lima institution "until such time as his condition is declared sane and then returned for trial."

The court's decision followed testimony by Dr. Arthur G. Hyde, Massillon state hospital superintendent, that his examinations disclosed the youth "insane" and "mentally irresponsible."

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

Reaction to a "Blast."

AS THE old year nears the end, its last days are not free from evidence that whatever happens abroad there will be very little peace in the field of politics and public affairs at home. Recent developments have made the "era of good feeling," so optimistically referred to a short time ago, seem very remote, indeed.

The truth is the conciliatory attitude of the administration seems keyed to the acuteness of economic conditions. When it appeared that we were headed for a major depression there was alarm in the White House. The president reassured business of his friendly intent and his trusted aides called for co-operation. But recently convinced, on what seems insufficient grounds, that there is nothing really to fear, the conciliatory policy is dropped. In response to left-wing pressure, through Robert Jackson, assistant attorney general and a recognized spokesman, business is furiously assailed as having brought about high prices and caused the slump. The old monopoly issue is trotted out and a thoroughly belligerent attitude assumed.

* * *

THE RADICAL senators, the Lubins and Hendersons, the Corcorans and Cohens, the Mintons and Barclays, the anti-capitalistic group and the coat-tail politicians were thrilled—or seemed so. Their enthusiasm was due largely to the belief that Mr. Roosevelt would follow the Jackson speeches in his message to congress; that he had abandoned what to them is the reprehensible effort to restore business confidence and will go down the line in the good old New Deal way, hammering at the economic royalists and spending more, not less, federal funds.

* * *

FROM THE conservative side the reaction to Mr. Jackson's speeches was naturally strong. The New York Times pointed out that the New Deal policies had been the chief influence in fostering monopoly and raising prices. General Johnson, in a speech, called it a "blast of defiance against business and asserted that by a whole cluster of policies deliberately intended to increase the labor costs of production the administration did more to increase prices than any other agency. "High costs and high prices," he said, "lie directly on the administration door and nowhere else under the sun." Dr. Raymond Moley, once, as was General Johnson, an intimate adviser of the president's, likened Mr. Jackson's utterances to those of Bryan and Borah. "This seedling statesman of the Democratic party," he wrote, "neither added anything to the inchoate philosophy of these hardy perennials nor promoted his own growth, nor contributed to the efforts to achieve peace in our national life."

* * *

FROM OTHER sources friendly to the president, it was pointed out that politicians expect Mr. Jackson to be the Democratic candidate for governor in New York next year and, if successful, he may be favored by Mr. Roosevelt for the 1940 presidential nomination. Undoubtedly it is true that Mr. Jackson is a candidatorial possibility for 1938, and this gives his utterances a distinct political slant. Privately, some of his fellow-New Dealers, aspirants themselves for higher political honors, have been prompt to point this out. In brief, the Jackson speeches have tended to widen the breach between business and government, despite the prospect of co-operation and conciliation so forcefully urged by Mr. Kennedy. Clearly, they have promoted discord, suspicion and bad feeling instead of lessening them.

* * *

IT CAN hardly be said that the tune sounded by the assistant attorney general was a happy way to start the New Year. Nor is the feeling engendered encouraging for those who are convinced our situation is serious and that cordial co-operation and understanding between government and business are essential if the system is to be saved. Just a short while ago there seemed general agreement in Washington about this. Right now there does not seem general agreement about anything. Mr. Roosevelt's subordinates do not often strike notes out of harmony with the White House choir. An old Maryland machine politician used to explain himself by saying "I never sings until the hymn is guv out." It looks as though Mr. Jackson knew the number of the hymn and that the selection was made at that White House conference of left-wing senators held two weeks ago. That's when the co-operation idea went "out the window" and the "kick 'em in the pants" policy was put over.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—When they figure which of Hollywood's cowboy stars ranked highest at the box-office this year, you can put it down now that the name will be Gene Autry.

Four years ago this Autry was a Hollywood unknown. Three years ago he appeared in his first picture, in a minor role. In his next picture he was starred. All told, he has made 22 films. Starring for Republic, an independent studio, he has had bids from two majors, 20th Century-Fox and Paramount.

He gets an average of 2,000 fan letters a week. The total jumps whenever he "guests" on the air, which is frequently. After he "guested" for Rudy Vallee 10,000 fans wrote in. He had to employ three extra secretarics to answer them. For his regular affairs he maintains a business office and one secretary. He religiously keeps up with fan mail calling for his personal attention.

* * *

His pictures play on Broadway but not on Hollywood boulevard. His studio has a standing offer of one week's free rental on any Autry picture to any exhibitor anywhere, but Hollywood boulevard theaters so far haven't taken it. About 200 others, over the country, who took the chance have booked the entire run of Autrys. This has jumped the number of theaters who play Autrys to approximately 8,000.

Autry was 30 last Sept. 29. He was born in Tioga, Texas, came to Hollywood via Tulsa, Okla., radio and phonograph recordings. He was first to put music in a western—and it was one of Ken Maynard's westerns at that. In "In Old Santa Fe," Gene sang in a musical sequence or two. Maynard, the star, sang but trough the courtesy of a voice double. Now virtually all the westerns are "singing" pictures.

The music, plus an attempt to break away from the old "western" formula, gets much of the credit for the popularity of Autry's product. He never uses the plot about the cowgirl, the hero, the mortgaged ranch, and the conniving villan—not in the old sense. He dresses it up in modern clothes, sometimes so nicely that it doesn't seem like that plot at all. There is always enough of it left, and plenty of shooting and riding and open country scenery, to make it a real western.

He uses "specialties" wherever possible to enhance the entertainment value. Will and Gladys Ahern of vaudeville, for instance, and his own Smiley Burnette, and now Lasses White, the minstrel man. He acquired Smiley, the huge accordion player, from a one-man radio station in Tuscola, Ill. Smiley was the one man, getting $12 a week and gasoline. Gene, touring with an act billing 20 members, met a theater manager who objected because he had only 19. Smiley was the answer—at $35 a week. He gets more now.

* * *

Autry is six feet, blue-eyed, quiet-talking, agreeable—and a showman. Dresses in neatly creased, modified "cowboy" business suit, boots, ten-gallon cream-colored hat, handkerchief bowtie. His red ranch truck—his name's on it—makes no point of avoiding public places. On personal appearances he travels in a trailer—with his horse Champion.

His fan mail includes the usual number of marriage proposals. He is already married, lives on a ranch in North Hollywood.

He thinks—honestly—that he's one of the luckiest guys in pictures.

RENNER NOMINATED FOR POST

Mansfield Man May Get Chairmanship of A. A. U. District.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

DONALD RENNER, who did such a fine job of conducting the national F. O. E. bowling tournament in the city last spring, has been nominated for the past of commissioner of the A. A. U. in Richland county. The announcement of his appointment is expected in the near future. . . . It will cost $4.40, $3.30 and $2.20 to see Sonja Henie perform from the reserved sections when she appears in Cleveland next month. General admission will be $1.10. . . . The 1937 record book compiled by a widely-known Louisville bat factory will carry a picture of Dewey Stover, who won the batting title while leading the Red Sox to the Ohio State league gonfalon. . . . And Poody Switzer writes in the Fostoria Review: "While tripping the light fantastic at the Rosendale hall last night, we ran into Dewey Stover, all dressed up in a tux and beaming with joy. High collar, boiled shirt and all—Stover didn't look so comfortable as he did last summer when he was wearing the gray flannels of the Mansfield Red Sox, but he did look a lot happier than he did most of the time when he was raising heck with the Umpires Blanchard, Jones, Miller, Kulik, etc." . . . Ed Shelby is known in Cleveland as the Deaf Dreadnaught from Shelby. He's the former Eddie Boutwell of Shelby high grid fame, you know.

SONJA

Sam Tracy, ex-Simpson high mentor cage coach, and wife returned to the city the other day for the holidays. Sam's still at Rockford, Ill., where he is continuing to do a pretty good job of developing athletes.

* * *

THE Tygers will not meet Mooseheart, Ill., on the gridiron next fall. Negotiatons have been junked. Canton McKinley, Massillon, Akron West, Sandusky, Ashland and Shelby have been definitely signed. Faculty Manager Earl Mann is now trying to fill the three open dates . . . Cliff Sherrard has offered Jock Collins the use of his trailer for that proposed trip to Florida . . . Steve Schemine, Jock's assistant at Westbrook Country club, is keeping up on his basketball by following the Tygers . . . And Walter Willis is timing the Mansfield high games with a new stop watch . . . The Yuncker Sports store has backed many basketball teams, but this season's edition is one of the few winners to wear the Yuncker colors in recent campaigns . . . Chet Swank looks for a big increase in attendance at City league games after the first of the year.

* * *

BOB AUNGST, late of Mansfield high, is matriculating at Kent State, and is slated to do a little tackle playing next fall . . . Toledo is 100 per cent behind Coach "Doc" Spears, and it expects him to turn out the greatest team in school history next fall . . . Movie Star Bob Hope played football at Cleveland East, the school which halted Mansfield's long winning streak a few years ago . . . Rumors have Johnny Hallabrin enrolling at virtually every school on this side of the sun, but don't be surprised if he goes to Ohio State. Ditto, Bob Glass . . . Walter Stratton appears to be the new No. 1 favorite of Mansfield wrestling fans . . .

1937's Sports Highlights -By Alan Gould

John Donald Budge's thrilling uphill triumph over Germany's Baron Gottfried von Cramm (left) in the deciding match of the inter-zone Davis Cup series, because the 1937 destination of the classic team trophy hinged upon its outcome.

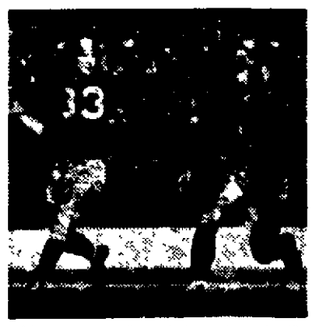
Ralph Guldahl's victory in the U. S. Open golf championship at Oakland Hills because it was a record-smashing climax to one of the greatest comebacks the sport ever has known. He overtook Sam Snead and won by a 2-stroke margin with a 281.

War Admiral's triumph in the Belmont Stakes because it gave the stout son of Man O' War the turf's "triple crown" for 3-year-olds and the right to be called the greatest son of the superhorse. He won the Belmont in record time, 2:28 3-5.

Joe Louis' knockout of James J. Braddock for the heavyweight championship of the world because it completed the Brown Bomber's remarkable rise to the top of the ratic heap only a year after being kayoed by Schmeling.

The New York Giants' rally to tie the Chicago Cubs with a 5-run flareup in the ninth inning at the Polo Ground, Aug. 25, because it turned the tide of the National league race. Jim Ripple, above, topped off the rally with a 3-run circuit clout.

Wilbur Shaw's victory over Veteran Ralph Hepburn by the amazingly close margin of 2:16 seconds in the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race on Memorial day because it was a record-smasher in every particular. He averaged 113.58 m. p. h.



The successive triumphs of the Washington Redskins in professional football over the New York Giants and Chicago Bears for the National league title because they lifted the pro game to new heights of popularity on the arm of Sammy Baugh above No. 33.

Name of College De Correvont Will Attend Remains a Secret

This is the last of a series on Bill De Correvont, schoolboy football sensation.)

* * *

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Bill De Correvont, the nation's most sought after high school football star, will go to college in the midwest.

It seems certain he'll enroll at Notre Dame, Northwestern, Ohio State, Wisconsin, Illinois or Chicago. Unofficial representatives of many institutions from near and far have paid visits to De Correvont to entice him into their fold. He has listened—but that is all.

He'll pick his own college. As a matter of fact, he's already made up his mind where he's going but he won't announce it until after he returns from the Rose Bowl game, where he and his mother will be the guests of Warner Brothers, movie magnates. He will be graduated Jan. 28 but doesn't plan to enter college until fall.

"Naturally I'm anxious to continue my athletic career in football and baseball," said De Correvont, "but that isn't the only reason I'm going to college. I expect to get an education and that'll come first with me."

* * *

DURING his high school career he never has failed in a subject. His four-year average is between 86 and 90. Three times his name has been on the honor roll. His last report card showed: English "E" (excellent); law "E"; salesmanship "G" (good); and civics "F" (fair).

His mother, Mrs. Harriet De Correvont, has supreme confidence in her son's ability to come through with flying colors in whatever he attempts to do in college and afterwards.

"I don't think Bill's head has been turned by all the attention paid to him," said Mrs. De Correvont. "As a matter of fact I never knew him to idolize any athlete when he was younger. He seemed to be fond of certain teams rather than individuals."

* * *

ALTHOUGH De Correvont made most of his fame as a football player, his future may be in baseball. He is famed as a fast and promising young outfielder in amateur circles.

In the past three seasons his batting average on the Austin high team has been .412, .480 and .360. He has hit several home runs over a 400 foot wall.

One major league club thought so much of him he was offered $5,000 to sign a contract and would be allowed to go to college provided he didn't play football. He turned down the offer as he has all others.

Tygers Emulate Sam Baugh As They Stop Erie Cagers

Pass Rings Around Barnstorming Pennsylvanians to Chalk Up 30 to 24 Triumph—Reserves Lose to Ontario Quintet.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

SLINGIN' SAMMY BAUGH never did a better job of passing than the Tygers of Mansfield high school did last night as they plastered a 30 to 24 whipping on the record of the barnstorming Erie, Pa., East quintet before a near-capacity crowd on the home planks.

Coach Russ Murphy's plank pounders literally passed rings around the invaders in their final game of the fading year, and they never trailed once after slippery Freddy Lewis tallied on an intricate play in the opening seconds of the rough embroglio.

The Pennsylvanians threatened continually with their mid-court shooting game, but they trailed the Tygers by margins varying from five to 11 points from early in the second period until the completion of the melee.

Tygers Too Tough.

Climaxing a three-game tour on which other stops were made at New Philadelphia and Canton Lehman, the visitors showed some evidence of fatigue, but it is doubtful whether they could have conquered the Tygers last night at their best.

Chester Herdzik, who scored 15 points against New Philly and 24 against Canton Lehman, proved to be the East cagers' chief threat, and he led both teams with 10 points.

Jack Lyons did a fine job of covering Herdzik, who shot constantly from mid-floor with little success. Herdzik scored three times in the first half, but the only basket he obtained after the intermission came in the third period on a shot from the center of the range.

Mansfield controlled the ball more than half of the time. The Erie quintet, lost the leather virtually every time it missed a shot as the majority were attempted from in front of the first line of the Mansfield defense.

The Tygers laid out a defense that the visitors were unable to crack with any degree of consistency. The number of times East broke through to secure set-up shots can be counted on two hands.

The Mansfield scoring was fairly evenly divided with Lyons setting the pace with seven points. Tommy Scott and Elmer Dials, who left the game in the third period on personals, tallied six apiece. John Hallabrin left the game mid-way in the second quarter, and Rich Nagle was forced out in the final frame. A total of 32 fouls were called by the officials, 18 being committed by the Tygers.

Coach Murphy used nine players in the fracas, with Sophomore Jack Dugger presenting the best performance of the replacements.

Gain Winning Margin.

The Men of Murphy secured their winning margin in the second period, which is usually their must hectic quarter. Obtaining a 9 to 7 lead in the opening quarter, the black-shirted Mansfielders increased their advantage to six points before the intermission to lead the Erie outfit 19 to 13.

Only one bucket was permitted the visitors in the third frame, which ended with Mansfield on top by a 26 to 16 margin.

Erie crawled within five points of the lead late in the final chapter, but two free tosses by Scott cinched the argument for the home town athletes. Lyons accounted for the only basket marked up by the Tygers in the last quarter.

The victory was the third in five games for the Tygers, who will be idle until a week from Friday when Parma of Cleveland invades Mansfield.

Reserves Lose, 25-16.

The Mansfield reserves dropped a 25 to 16 decision to the Ontario Ex-Hys in the preliminary game after holding a slight advantage at the half.

An unstoppable rally led by Bob Bogantz, who played a prominent part in Ontario high's spectacular season last winter, enabled the Ex-Hys to topple the reserves, paced by Rudolph's six points.

Olds Cling to A League Lead

Take Two Matches From Lumbermens In City Bowling Loop.

The Miller Oldsmobiles retained their lead in the City Class A bowling league last night at the Meder Recreation alleys by taking two matches from Lumbermens Insurance club. The Olds smacked out a 2784 total. Hilborn paced the winners with a 676, which included games of 244, 225 and 207. Lumbermens pounded out a 2857.

In the other matches, the Metcalf Pure Oils defeated the second place Liederkranz, 2813 to 2756, and the Meder Recreation club beat the Roma Lunch outfit, 2783 to 2709.

CLEVELAND TO SEE SONJA

Arena to House Skating Show Scheduled In January.

CLEVELAND — Sonja Henie will bring her Hollywood Ice Revue of over 100 skating stars to the new Arena for a five-night run starting Sunday, Jan. 16, Miss Henie's supporting cast will be composed of her fellow-skaters in her latest movie, "Happy Landing."

Smith, Dodson Meet In Finals

Veteran Chicagoan Favored In Hollywood Open.

HOLLYWOOD, Fla.—(AP)—Happy-go-lucky Leonard Dodson of Springfield, Mo., and Smooth-stocking Horton Smith of Chicago matched shots over the 18-hole route today for top money in the $4,000 Hollywood Beach hotel open.

Tied at 278 after a hectic 72-hole scramble, Dodson and Smith met with the difference between $750 and $550 at stake. In addition, they split half of the gallery receipts.

Dodson, comparatively unknown despite his victories in the Ohio State and Philadelphia opens this year, was willing to wager he would trim his more noted rival.

SHARKEY MEETS PINE

Collide In Feature Bout Monday In Arena Ring.

CLEVELAND—Pop-priced boxing, long missing locally, returns Monday night when Al Sutphin and Dick Deutsch collaborate in staging a 40-round card at the Arena.

Ray Sharkey of Cleveland and Lloyd Pine of Akron, a pair of the state's classiest lightweights, are paired in the featured bout over the ten round route.

SET DATE FOR ROAD HEARING

Commissioners to Act on Proposed Abandonment Jan. 21.

Richland and Ashland county commissioners today had set 2 p. m., Jan. 21 as the time for final hearing on the proposed abandonment of a half-mile section of road No. 14 on the Richland-Ashland county line in Mifflin township.

The joint hearing will be held at the Richland county commissioners' office. The little-used section of road for which abandonment is sought extends westward from state route 603 in Ashland county.

Commissioners of both counties will view the road at 10 a. m. the day of the hearing.

COUNTY CLEARS UP DEBT TO CITY

Pays Off Entire Obligation of $2,407 In Delinquent Sewer, Water Fees.

Richland county commissioners and city council had their debt differences settled today, the county clearing up its entire obligation with the payment of $2,407 representing delinquent sewer assessments and water rentals.

Commissioners authorized County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe to complete the settlement in the payment of $1,371 for sewer assessments and $1,036 for water rentals.

The city, however, still owes the county $3,331 on a 17-year-old tax debt, but arrangements were completed Dec. 10 for payment of the amount in nine annual installments. A payment totaling $236.77, charged against the waterworks department, was paid to the county Tuesday by City Auditor Paul Kelley.

The city's debt will be deducted from the real estate tax settlements due the city from the county over the nine-year period.

THEATER

FOR the first time in the history of San Francisco show business, a private business concern has turned exhibitor and rented a theater for its own presentation of a major film production. The unusual situation resulted from the inability of the Wells Fargo Bank & Union Trust company to purchase a block of 1500 seats for the opening day performance of "Wells Fargo," at a theater because of a "no reservations" policy. All employes of the institution, their wives, sweethearts and a selected list of prominent citizens were guests of the bank at a pre-released screening.

* * *

Drama of the Turf.

Three children, a motherly landlady, and one of the great horse races of the American season form the base of "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry," a drama of the turf, with Ronald Sinclair, Judy Garland, Mickey Rooney and Sophie Tucker. The picture, at the Ohio theater, casts Sinclair, new English boy actor, as a British lad who owns a horse. Rooney plays a jockey who tricks him, and through remorse and friendship finds regeneration. Miss Tucker has the role of the landlady.

* * *

Interesting Triangle.

The love affairs of a husband, his wife, and an unknown man, from the background of "Angel," Marlene Dietrich's newest starring vehicle in which she is supported by Herbert Marshall and Melvyn Douglas. Marshall is cast as Miss Dietrich's husband, who is busy with government affairs, has little time for romance. His wife makes a secret journey to Paris where she meets Douglas. The two spend an evening together and she disappears without revealing her identity. Shortly afterwards Douglas and Marshall meet and the latter invites Douglas to his home. There he meets—the woman he met in Paris. The picture is at the Madison theater.

"Born to the West."

Action, romance and comedy ride the range with John Wayne in the screen adaption of Zane Grey's "Born to the West," opening at the Majestic theater Friday and playing on the New Year's eve program at 11 p. m. The story concerns Wayne and his saddlemate, Sid Saylor in search of excitement. First they get into the wrong end of a battle between a rustler band and a sheriff's posse and then Morris falls in love with his cousin's girl. Sally Eilers. Harry Carey, John Beal and Frank Thoma in "Danger Patrol," completes the double bill.

* * *

"Springtime in the Rockies."

"Springtime in the Rockies," with Gene Autry, opens at the Ritz theater Friday. The film deals with the adventures of a rough-and-ready cowboy who suddenly has four girls fresh from an agricultural college descend upon him to teach him how to run a ranch. The second picture will be "Bulldog Drummond Comes Back," with John Barrymore, John Howard and Phyllis Clavering. A special midnight show, New Year Eve and New Year night, will offer "Underworld," a film featuring an all-colored cast. The show will be presented each night at 11:30.

RICHLAND WPA GRANT OKAYED

$13,592 Allotted to Operate Sewing Rooms in County.

The approval of a WPA grant for $13,592 to operate sewing rooms in Richland county had been given today by President Roosevelt, according to Associated Press dispatches from Washington.

One of three Ohio grants receiving the president's approval, the funds allotted to Richland county will finance sewing rooms where clothing is made for relief clients. A number of women are already employed on the project in the county.

The grants are subject to approval by the federal budget bureau and the state WPA administrator.

PAPER FROM SUGAR CANE

DURBAN, South Africa—(U.P.)—A company has been formed here to exploit a secret process for the manufacture of paper pulp from cane bagasse. The substance consists of fiber after the sugar has been extracted from it.

Nevada is the only state in the union that does not contain a streetcar line.

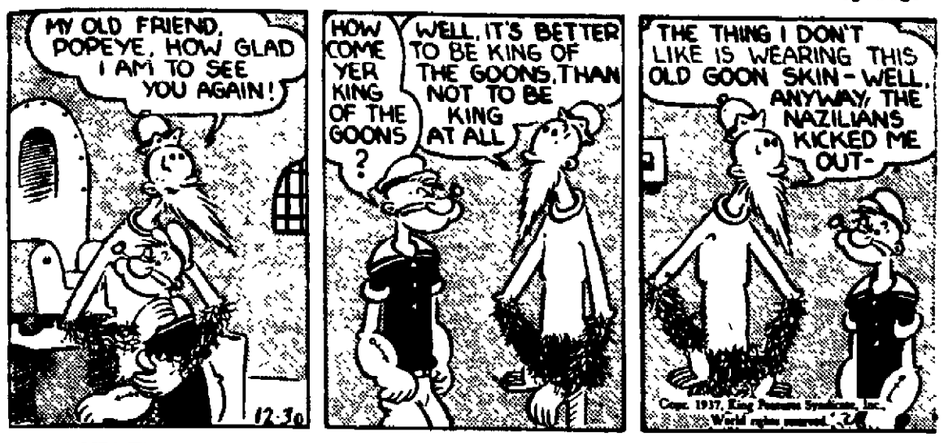
POPEYE— King Blozo Explains. By Segar



MY OLD FRIEND, POPEYE, HOW GLAD I AM TO SEE YOU AGAIN!
12-30
HOW COME YER KING OF THE GOONS?
WELL, IT'S BETTER TO BE KING OF THE GOONS, THAN NOT TO BE KING AT ALL
THE THING I DON'T LIKE IS WEARING THIS OLD GOON SKIN - WELL, ANYWAY, THE NAZILIANS KICKED ME OUT-
SO I CAME HERE - WELL, SIR, ONE AFTER-NOON I HAD ABOUT A GALLON OF WINE OVER MY CAPACITY - HMM - YOU KNOW I'M - NOT A DRINKING MAN - I CAN TAKE IT OR I CAN LEAVE IT ALONE IF THEY LOCK ME UP
I NEVER THOUGHT YOU COULD GET PALOODED ON WINE - MUSTA BEEN THE HEAT - ANYWAY, I WENT OUT ON THE PALACE BALCONY - AND--
WHEN I LOOK AT YOUR GENTLE FACES I JUST KNOW YOU CAN'T GO ON WITH THIS

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE— The Pilgrim Daughters. By Harold Gray

OH, IT WAS WONDERFUL OF YOU, ABIGAIL, TO TAKE IN THAT POOR WOMAN AND HER CHILDREN-
IT WAS SO NOBLE - YOU SAY HER NAME IS MRS. CHANCE?
I WONDER IF SHE'S ONE OF THE SPRINGFIELD CHANCES-
ODD THE LITTLE GIRL HAS SUCH RED HAIR - MRS. CHANCE'S IS JET BLACK, ISN'T IT? I THINK I SAW HER THROUGH THE WINDOW-
HER HUSBAND MUST BE A POOR STICK-
I'D CERTAINLY ASK HER WHERE HER HUSBAND IS IF SHE WERE IN MY HOUSE-
I'M SORRY YOU HAD TO OVERHEAR THEM, ROSE - THEY MEAN WELL - THEY'RE JUST MEDDLESOME - THEIR FAMILIES GO BACK TO THE DAYS OF THE WITCH TRIALS AND BEYOND-
THAT'S ALL RIGHT - I DON'T MIND THEM--
BACK TO THE DAYS OF WITCH TRIALS, EH? HA! HA! "LAND WHERE OUR FATHERS DIED--- LAND WHERE THE PILGRIMS PRIED"--- DANNY, IT'S A FUNNY OLD WORLD, ISN'T IT? HA! HA! A FUNNY OLD WORLD-

THE NEBBS— Discord. By Sol Hess

I MIGHT GO BACK INTO PICTURES. FLINT OFFERED ME A PART IN A PLAY BUT I TOLD HIM IT'S THE LEAD WITH ME OR NOTHIN'!
12-30
WHY DON'T YOU TWO GET A LOVE SEAT? WHY STAND UP TO LOAF? WHILE I'M OUT THERE SLAPPING DOUGH AROUND AND DODGING HOT FAT SHE'S PRETTYING HERSELF AND YOU'RE LOOKIN' ON!!
YOU CAN'T TALK TO ME LIKE THAT. YOU CAN HAVE YOUR $3000 BACK ANY TIME YOU WANT TO GET OUT!
GIMME THE $3000 AND I'LL START A PLACE NEXT DOOR AND WHEN I DO, YOU WON'T HAVE NO CASHIER PATTIN' HER FACE WITH A POWDER PUFF ALL DAY AND YOU'LL BE UNDER A TRAY!!

DIXIE DUGAN— Influencing People. By J. P. McEvoy and J. R. Stricker

-I REMEMBER WHEN MRS. HACKET WAS SO BELLIGERENT SHE'D HIT ME ON THE HEAD WITH A BOOK AT THE SLIGHTEST PROVOCATION - NOW THERE ISN'T A NICER OLD LADY LIVING
AND HER SON, STEPHEN WAS A NO-GOOD PLAY BOY WHEN HE FIRST COME - NOW HE'S A RIGHT-DOIN' YOUNG MAN!

LOOK AT MRS. GRUNTLEY! SHE USED TO BE MEAN AND DID EVERYTHING SHE COULD TO HURT MISS DUGAN
THAT SCAMP SON O' HERS CERTAINLY TURNED OUT T'BE A SWELL LI'L FELLA!
© McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

BUT THE BEST THING MISS DUGAN HAS DONE, IN MY OPINION, IS TO BRING US TOGETHER - MY DARLING WIFE!
OH- THOMAS-
YES! DIXIE HAS DONE WONDERS BY BEING HONEST AND WILLING TO DO THINGS FOR OTHERS

BRICK BRADFORD— Adrift In an Atom. By William Ritt and Clarence Gray

BRICK, ALMOST BLINDED BY THE FIERCE HEAT, STUMBLES INTO THE CONTROL CABIN—
AND TUMBLES OVER KOPAK'S SILENT FORM
RISING WEARILY FROM THE SEAT BRICK, IN A HAZE, DIMLY SEES THE DIRECTION CONTROLS!

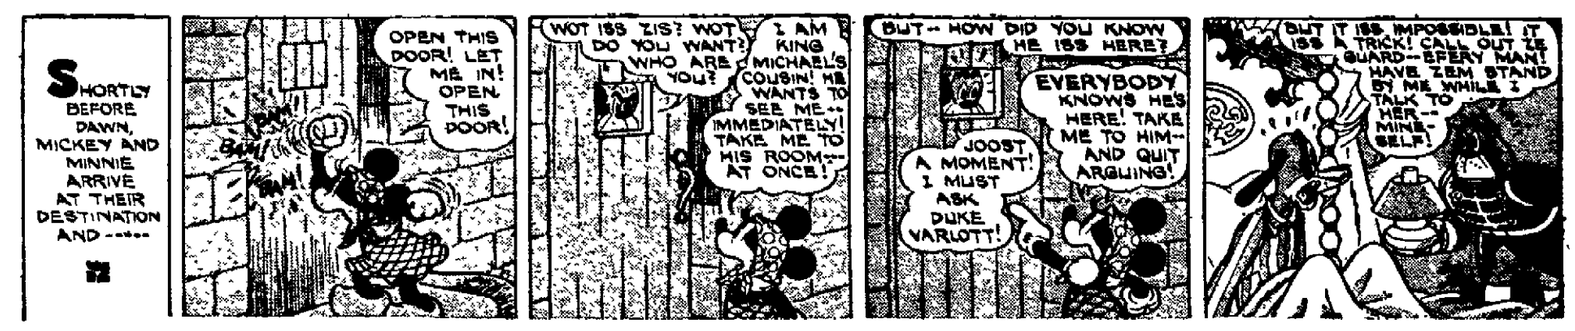
MICKEY MOUSE— Out of a Sound Sleep. By Walt Disney



SHORTLY BEFORE DAWN, MICKEY AND MINNIE ARRIVE AT THEIR DESTINATION AND---- OPEN THIS DOOR! LET ME IN! OPEN THIS DOOR!
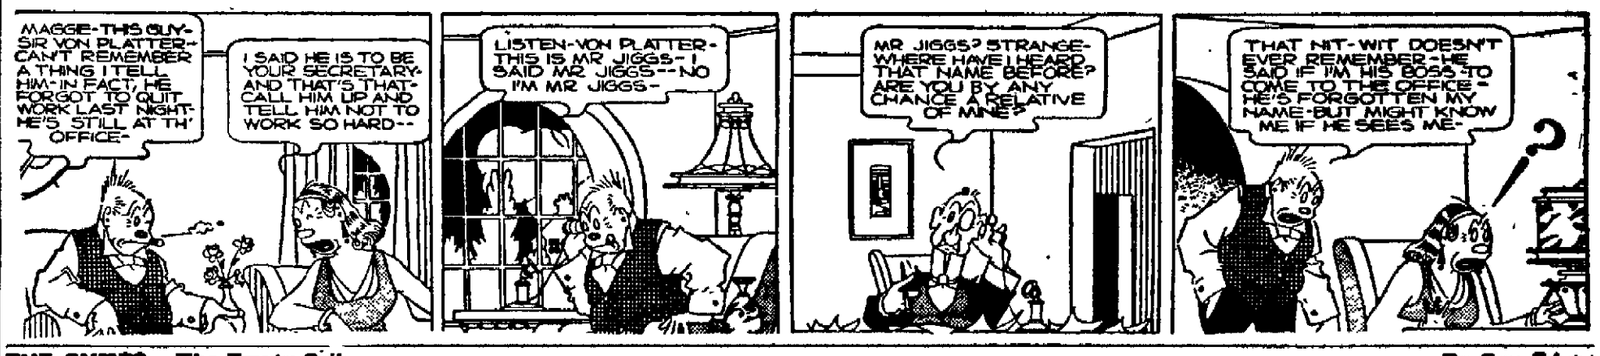
BAM! BAM!
WOT ISS ZIS? WOT DO YOU WANT? WHO ARE YOU?
I AM KING MICHAEL'S COUSIN! HE WANTS TO SEE ME-- IMMEDIATELY! TAKE ME TO HIS ROOM--- AT ONCE!
BUT-- HOW DID YOU KNOW HE ISS HERE?
JOOST A MOMENT! I MUST ASK DUKE VARLOTT!
EVERYBODY KNOWS HE'S HERE! TAKE ME TO HIM-- AND QUIT ARGUING!
BUT IT ISS IMPOSSIBLE! IT ISS A TRICK! CALL OUT ZE GUARD--EFERY MAN! HAVE ZEM STAND BY ME WHILE I TALK TO HER--- MINE-SELF!

TAILSPIN TOMMY— Surprise! By Hal Forrest

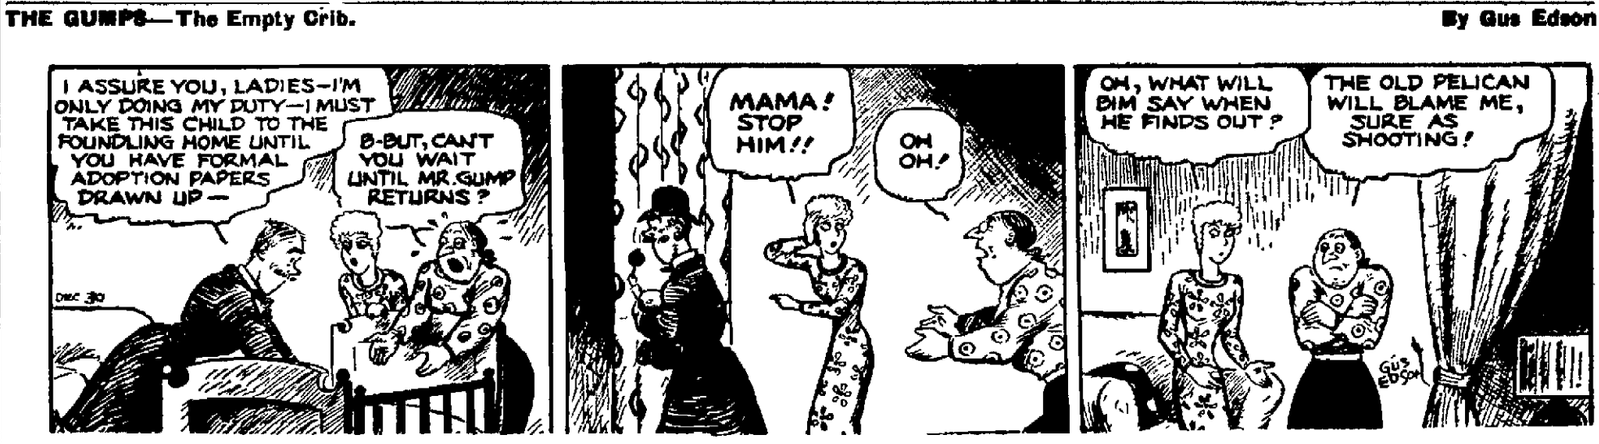
SORRY, CHIEF! I THOUGHT YOU WERE ALONE.
COME IN, BOYS! TOMMY, I WANT YOU TO MEET JED DUMAK, YOUR NEW CO-PILOT!
UH... W-WHA
HERB AND I HAVE DECIDED THAT YOU'RE ELIGIBLE NOW FOR YOUR CHIEF PILOT'S WINGS, SKEETER!
G-GOLLY, CHIEF! NO FOOLIN'?
IT'S ON THE LEVEL, SKEETS!
WAL..WAL, CHIEF..IF YOU DON'T MIND..I'D RUTHER..JUS' BE CO-PILOT..FOR TOM..

BRINGING UI FATHER— By George McManus



MAGGIE-THIS GUY-SIR VON PLATTER-CAN'T REMEMBER A THING I TELL HIM-IN FACT, HE FORGOT TO QUIT WORK LAST NIGHT-HE'S STILL AT TH' OFFICE-
I SAID HE IS TO BE YOUR SECRETARY-AND THAT'S THAT-CALL HIM UP AND TELL HIM NOT TO WORK SO HARD--
LISTEN-VON PLATTER-THIS IS MR JIGGS-I SAID MR JIGGS--NO I'M MR JIGGS-
MR JIGGS? STRANGE-WHERE HAVE I HEARD THAT NAME BEFORE? ARE YOU BY ANY CHANCE A RELATIVE OF MINE?
THAT NIT-WIT DOESN'T EVER REMEMBER-HE SAID IF I'M HIS BOSS TO COME TO THE OFFICE-HE'S FORGOTTEN MY NAME-BUT MIGHT KNOW ME IF HE SEES ME-

THE GUMPS— The Empty Crib. By Gus Edson



I ASSURE YOU, LADIES-I'M ONLY DOING MY DUTY-I MUST TAKE THIS CHILD TO THE FOUNDLING HOME UNTIL YOU HAVE FORMAL ADOPTION PAPERS DRAWN UP-
B-BUT, CAN'T YOU WAIT UNTIL MR. GUMP RETURNS?

MARKET SLOW AS AIRCRAFTS, STEELS CLIMB

Small Gains Predominate With Year-End Tax Sales For Cash Plentiful.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Steels and aircrafts swung upward in today's stock market but many other issues experienced difficulties in climbing.

Gains running to 2 or more points predominated near the second hour.

Most rails, utilities and motors were only fractionally improved.

Year-end tax selling for cash was plentiful, sales for the ordinary 2-day delivery having terminated yesterday.

The steel and aviation groups continued to reflect the likelihood of army and navy expansion.

Bonds were moderately mixed, as were commodities. Grain futures, however, pointed higher.

Holders of steels saw two encouraging signs, aside from rearmament expectations, in the boost of 50 cents a ton in steel scrap at Pittsburgh and the lifting of mill operations at Birmingham to 63 per cent of capacity as Republic lighted another open hearth furnace.

Helpful also was the forecast of Secretary of Commerce Roper that the National Housing campaign would serve to release in 1938 an "enormous volume" of durable goods, demand for which has slackened appreciably in past months.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON—(AP)—(U. S. Dept. of Agr.)—Scattered purchases were being made in fleece wools yesterday. Fine clothing lengths of Ohio and similar types were bringing 26 to 27 cents in the grease. Fine Delaine Ohio wool was quiet, with some being offered at 31 to 32 cents in the grease. Some houses were asking prices 1 to 2 cents in the grease above this range. Combing ⅜ blood Ohio fleeces were selling occasionally in small quantities at 30 to 32 cents in the grease, prices being mostly at the high side of these ranges.

REMEMBER THAT NIGHT

CHAPTER XIX

He left her and Karen felt she could not move for a pain in her heart. A splinter in my heart, she thought, that will always be there.

And Brenda knew she had spoken to Philip the moment she appeared on the stage.

* * *

Though Philip was in the theater every day and though Karen was keenly conscious of his presence, she did not speak to him again. One day at lunch Brenda said, "Philip and Lilyan dropped in last night. I was hoping they weren't as much in love as they were. But they are. It's a mean thought but I was hoping for your sake, Karen. Their plans are made. They're going to be married the day after the play opens in New York. Lilyan is shopping now and looking at furniture."

Brenda had smiled kindly. "I'm sorry. It seems queer that after all these years I see the same thing happen to you that happened to me. But you're behaving nicely. I behaved badly."

Craig Stanhope waited to take them home. But in the car Brenda said, "Drop me off first, Craig. I've a headache."

Craig's brown eyes sought Karen's. "That means you have dinner with me, young lady. I positively refuse to eat alone."

Leaving Brenda, they went to a small German restaurant and it was one of the most delightful evenings Karen had ever spent. Why didn't Brenda marry this cultured, handsome and amusing man? What was it that she could not tell him?

Craig talked about his work and Karen listened and asked questions, noticing his strong hands that had performed many successful but trying operations. And Craig was curious at Brenda's interest in the girl opposite him. Both felt that after tonight, after the informal friendly dinner, they would be more than casual acquaintances.

Driving up Broadway, Craig said, "You'll see your name in lights one of these nights, Karen. You'll see thousands of people pay their money, wear their best clothes, and give up an entire evening to see you. I suppose a young actress works for that as a young doctor works toward performing a difficult operation successfully."

As they passed a church on Fifth avenue, he inclined his close-cropped gray head and said, "That is the church in which Lilyan and Philip will be married."

Since there was no parking space before the apartment house, Karen said, "You needn't bother to get out." Her eyes were honest and grateful when she said, "I've enjoyed tonight almost more than anything I've done since I've been here."

Craig Stanhope smiled. "That's mutual. I'm beginning to understand why Brenda is so fond of you. Because you are you. Good night, child."

She was thinking of Craig Stanhope as she waited for the elevator Absorbed, she did not notice the tall man who came in and stood next to her until he touched her sleeve.

"Karen . . ."

The sound of her name made her turn her head quickly and look up, startled.

It was Bill McGrath!

* * *

Karen had a strange, faint feeling. Bill was wearing glasses. He could see her! That was her first thought before she thought of Roxanne—before questions about him formed in her mind. He could see her!

"I didn't mean to frighten you," he said.

The elevator door was opened. Karen said, "Come up, Bill."

In the living room she turned on the lamp over the brown sofa and looked at him. He was thinner. It was obvious that wherever he had been he had suffered.

She sat on the brown sofa and he sat beside her.

She had to ask, "You can see? You . . ."

"I wasn't very clever, was I? I didn't fool my parents. How is Roxanne? That's what I've got to know first! That's why I've trailed you for days trying to see you first! But either she was with you or you got into a cab . . ."

"You want me to tell you if she's in love with someone else—isn't that it, Bill?"

When he nodded, she said, "No, she isn't. She loves you. But she has met a boy who asked her to marry him and she's been considering it seriously. You can't blame her. She didn't see anything for herself except singing in a cheap night club."

"Maybe I shouldn't have come back. I messed up everything, but I thought . . ."

Karen asked, "What happened? The papers said one thing but your parents thought another. They've advertised for you. They . . ."

"I've seen them. I went home first." He looked away from her to the picture of a smiling, golden-haired Roxanne on the desk. "I was going blind. That night you were out with us—the last night—I was nearly crazy." Lighting a cigaret he leaned forward, his eyes still fixed on the picture of Roxanne. "What else could I do? Do you think I'd let Roxanne support a blind man? Or my parents? Fading out of the picture, letting them think I was dead, was the best way out of it. I put my stuff on a boat at Miami and walked off."

Karen kept looking at his eyes. "But you can see now, Bill."

"I came back for an operation. Several doctors told me it was a hopeless case. But one man said there might be a chance. If it failed, I was never coming back. I had put my money in a bank in Miami under another name. I was going to live there on it until it ran out and then . . . well, it didn't matter. But if the operation was a success . . ."

Karen nodded. "And it was a success!" How he must have suffered both in mind and body! Being a whole man, with the right to marry the girl he loved, depended upon a surgeon's skill. Suddenly she thought of Craig Stanhope's strong, steady hands.

He said, "The operation wasn't anything to the thoughts I had while I was in the hospital with my eyes bandaged for days and not knowing whether I'd be a blind man when they came off."

* * *

He looked at her and smiled a twisted smile. "But that's history. I went home first. My mother and father weren't as shocked as I thought they'd be. They expected me to come back. I read Roxanne's letters to them. They made me feel like a coward for running out."

Tapping the cigaret ashes into a glass tray on the end table, he said, "If she's found somebody else—then I'll step out of the picture."

Karen's voice was calm and confident. "For Roxanne there will never be any other man except you, Bill. She tried to find a substitute. Don't you think she's suffered, too? If you had been dead, it would have been the end—nothing to hope for. But she knew you were somewhere and needing her! But she's been brave. I wish I were as brave as she."

"That's why she's the only girl for me: I thought about it a lot before I came back. I can't abuse my eyes. I can't work as I did. I'll never be the big business success I thought I'd be or make big money. I've been to see my boss and there's a job for me in the Richmond office—a light job. I promised Roxanne things, big things. She's had to work for everything she has. That's why I thought a lot before I came back. Suppose she met a man with money . . . things like that. I'm no bargain."

Karen's eyes filled. "You're her Bill. Why do you men think of love and money in the same breath? All Roxanne wants in the whole world is you, Bill. You! To live with you for the rest of her life and love you."

That, she thought suddenly, was all she asked—to live with Philip for the rest of her life and love him and be loved.

"Don't be proud, Bill. The people who hear Roxanne sing every night don't dream that make-up and glitter mask her yearning to live a small, ordinary, normal life and keep house for some man—for you. Men are always talking about what they'd like to give the girls they love. They forget that the girls really want to do most of the giving."

He grinned. "You make me feel better."

Hearing high-heeled footsteps coming down the hall, Bill arose. Quickly Karen picked up her brown sport coat and green hat. Going quickly to the door, she said, "I'll have to stop her and tell her. She may be more shocked than I was. I'm afraid . . ."

Roxanne was hurrying down the hall.

"Going out?" she asked as Karen stopped. "I called at dinner time but you were out. So I had dinner with Eddie. I've got to hurry into an evening dress."

"I had dinner with Dr. Stanhope," Karen said.

Roxanne laughed. Only a few feet away, Karen knew, Bill McGrath heard her husky laughter. "Taking Brenda's boy friend away from her, eh? Where are you going?"

She moved but Karen caught her arm. "I don't know where I'm going. It doesn't matter. Roxanne, there's—there's someone in there waiting to see you. As you always tell me—take it easy. It's—it's Bill! He's come back! He can see!"

* * *

Roxanne stiffened. All color drained from her face. Uttering a sharp little cry and then crying, "Bill! Bill!" she moved away and began to run. The door of the apartment opened and slammed.

In the hall Karen put on her hat and coat. On the street she walked quickly toward no destination, visualizing Roxanne and Bill together in that dim room.

Quite suddenly she realized that she was passing the church in which Philip and Lilyan would be married. And quite suddenly she realized that she was standing in a place where they would walk as they came from the church as man and wife. Would she be invited? Would she go? Would she go and see Philip take Lilyan as his wife, and sit as if she were a vice and bite down on her lips to keep from crying out?

She walked until she was tired and chilled and then returned to the apartment. Knocking before she entered, she heard Bill call to her to come in.

Roxanne came out of the bedroom with several dresses over her arm. She had been crying but she was smiling now. But when she spoke her voice was husky and a little broken. She went to Bill and put her arm through his and looked at Karen.

"He thought I cared that he'd never make much money! We're going to Richmond tonight and we're going to be married there! I called my boss. This time you can't step into my place. Now I—I won't be able to whistle from the gallery for you."

Karen asked, "Can't I help you pack?"

"You bet you can! But what—what are you going to do with the apartment? It won't be for long. You'll have a place on Park avenue."

Karen laughed. "Stop thinking about me. I'll be fine."

At midnight she stood between them as they stood beside the waiting train. Roxanne embraced her.

"Don't forget Mr. and Mrs. McGrath in Richmond! Think about us tomorrow. It's our wedding day!" She blinked happy tears as she looked at Bill. "Mr. and Mrs. McGrath. Doesn't that sound swell?"

Bill gripped Karen's hand. He didn't say anything—he couldn't. But he gripped her hand so tightly it hurt.

As the train moved slowly away, Karen saw them sitting side by side looking young and very happy. More than any two people she knew, they had earned their happiness. When you suffered and wept and sacrificed for it, you had earned it.

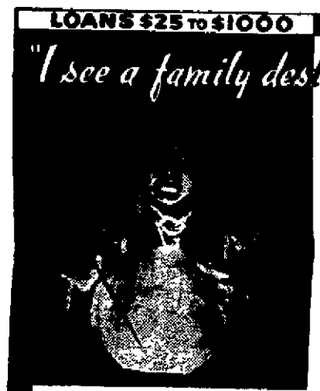
"I see a family destined for success"



LISTEN TO THEIR STORY

"A Loan of $600 was the real starting point in our family's progress. It enabled us to centralize our debts, buy a few shares of stock in the firm, and make several more improvements in our home. Today our income is doubled. Our family is happy and comfortable, yet we won't hesitate to call on The City Loan to finance us again if a bright opportunity comes our way."

The responsibility of obligations never hurt anyone. It is the poor man's way of getting ahead.

YOUR OWN FAMILY STORY

Looking back over your own progress you will recall times when you used your credit to good advantage and financed your way as you came along building a family and a happy home. When you again need personal financing in the future, remember The City Loan is anxious to help you. We offer the advantages of step-down payments, rewards for prompt payment, larger loans, longer time to pay. Write for free booklet.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Book of the Week

TALE OF BALI, by Vicki Baum. Doubleday, Doran, New York, 417 pp., $2.75.

* * *

A South Sea island at the turn of the century provides the unusual background for "Tale of Bali," the latest novel by the author of "Grand Hotel." The absorbing book, with almost no white characters and an atmosphere similar to that of "The Good Earth," is completely different from anything Vicki Baum has written heretofore.

Present in the new book are all the qualities that so distinguished "Grand Hotel"; her powers of description and characterization, of writing of many people and across the sweep of a great canvas, yet never losing the sharp focus of her story.

Her subject is that of the small island of Bali; of the peasants and the land, and the overthrow by the Dutch, and of the great hereditary rajahs who had ruled the island from time immemorial.

Within the compass of this idea, her characters go their ways, all with lives independent in themselves, but inextricably linked by circumstances.

The author's study of the Balinese cuts deep, and was derived from her residence on the island and her study of the people.

Some of its scenes, such as the great burning at Tabanan, and the final charge of the Balinese against the Dutch troops are vividly pictured by the author.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1937.

"I was drunk," may explain but it doesn't excuse.

President Roosevelt saves Christmas cards—but how's it to be done in a house without an attic?

One of the better known astrologers predicts domestic difficulties for some of the Hollywood screen celebrities during the coming year—which would scarcely need an astrologer.

Uncertainty Marks the Year-End.

THESE closing days of 1937 are marked by greater uncertainty, and fear of what 1938 will bring, than has been any recent year-end.

A number of elements enter into producing this disturbed feeling in the minds of millions of people—principal among these being lack of confidence in the present administration of federal government.

Probably next in importance, as a retarding influence, is the type of organized labor leadership represented by John L. Lewis, who, during the past year, has done much to harm the cause of those who work.

In the United States there is a place for government, for industry and for industrial workers—but unless these essential factors can be brought into co-ordination and co-operation there can be no substantial prosperity, nor any advancement of the social progress which is being so sincerely sought.

The tendency of governmental agencies and labor leadership, during the past several years, has been to so hamper and overtax legitimate business enterprises as to discourage initiative and capital investment.

Last week's ruling of the National Labor Relations Board, in the Ford Motor company case, was virtual usurpation of authority to manage operation of the company's business.

Until that case is finally decided by the highest court, and until it is possible for industry and business to proceed with reasonable confidence in developing production and distribution programs extending a year or more into the future, there can be no settled feeling in the matter of employment—or even in continuance of industrial operation.

There is need, to be sure, for honest and intelligent governmental restraint of bad practices in business and industry, just as there is requirement for enforcement of laws against criminal acts, but there is no more justification to regard all industrial and business organizations as dishonest than there would be to look upon all persons as criminals.

Any attempt to fathom probabilities of the immediate future must hinge largely on practicality of measures adopted by Congress during its regular session which opens next Monday.

For Better City Government.

MUCH has been said during the past week about Newton D. Baker's ability to think clearly and act conscientiously on matters having to do with the public interest.

It appears only reasonable that many other persons, less experienced in public affairs, would be inclined to accept the judgment of Mr. Baker on some subjects to which he devoted much thought and study.

Mr. Baker, for instance, saw clearly the advantages to be gained by honest administration of a charter form of city government and led in the fight which resulted in adoption of municipal home rule. A number of Ohio cities have benefited by this progressive step.

During the past year more Mansfield people than ever before have been thinking along lines of a charter government and city manager. It is a movement toward economy and efficiency that will continue to arouse greater interest and support until it is finally accomplished.

Youthful Criminals.

THE most important fact in American criminology today is probably this—that most of the serious crimes are committed by boys.

One of the worst series of hold-ups and murders in this country during Christmas week was committed by a gang of five young fellows of whom four ranged from 17 to 20 years of age.

In the same city a study of 800 robbery cases recorded during the last three years, involving dozens of murders, found that boys of 18 led all the other age-groups There were 113 robberies committed by 18-year-olds, and so on, the number of robbers and murderers diminishing in a surprisingly regular way with their age. The boys from 17 to 21 were responsible for approximately half of the crimes.

These figures show clearly where to begin in the necessary war against crime. It must start in the kindergarten and go through the school years, with all the help that is obtainable in the homes.

There may have to be a new shifting of educational emphasis to the moral side. The most important thing in a school system is not turning out scholars, but turning out decent citizens, with a moral code that will make them useful to society and themselves.

Cars Out of Order.

IN AN EFFORT to reduce traffic accidents by reducing the number of unreliable cars on the streets, a check was undertaken in one city. The authorities stopped 2,000 autos at random and gave them a thorough inspection to find their mechanical condition.

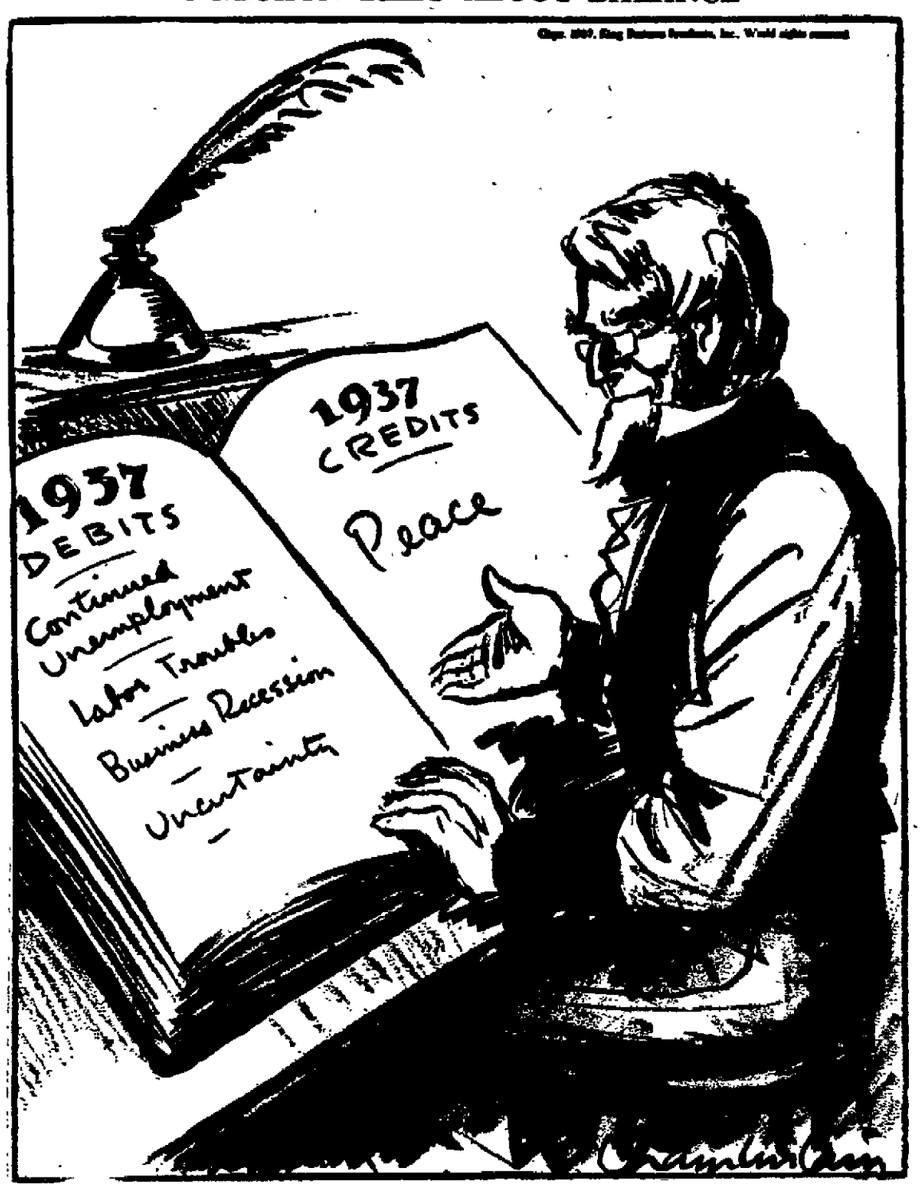
The results of the study were hardly flattering to the motorist. Only 50 cars out of the 2,000 were in really good mechanical condition. In the other 1,950 various things were wrong—defective brakes, lights, windshield wipers, steering gear, horn, tires, and so on. Any of these cars, caught in an emergency or in heavy traffic, might cause a bad tie-up or a serious accident.

Furthermore, 60 drivers of the 2,000 stopped were intoxicated. That is a small part of 2,000, but enough to create a serious traffic menace.

The days are lengthening, but—as a favorite radio comedian will probably remark again next week—lard is still shortening.

A meter attachment for auto horns, with suitable charge for excessive use, might help to abate the honking nuisance.

"I RECKON THEY ABOUT BALANCE"



Fear Regular Session Will Be Unproductive

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Congress' regular session, beginning Jan. 3, probably will be as unproductive as the extra session, recently ended.

During the short holiday recess New Deal leaders have worked hard to put some "pep" into the Rooseveltian program, but the rank and file of legislators seem as little inclined as ever to lend support to White House recommendations. Quite generally they scattered from Washington over Christmas and the New Year. Probably few of them went home, except those who live very nearby the capital, but they went a-vacationing elsewhere, anyway. Apparently they preferred not to remain here, to be worked on at leisure by the administration's managers. Said managers wanted them to stay, for a week or 10 days of fixing between sessions. It was significant that the lawmakers dodged, by absenting themselves so numerously.

Not that the Republicans had any reason for going into hiding. The Democrats were the solons who sought seclusion from administrative pressure. But, considering that Democrats are about three times the strength of Republicans on Capitol Hill, they were the ones whose exodus gave Washington so quiet a political Christmas day.

* * *

EMBARRASSING POSITION

Many a Democratic senator and representative, who must face his bailiwick's voters in the spring primaries and again at the polls in the autumn, is in an embarrassing position.

On the one hand, it is bilious business for him to go on record as having done nothing to counteract the natinal economic recession.

On the opposite hand, it is equally bilious business for him to subscribe to some of the recession counteractants, which manifestly must be repulsive to his people locally.

Maybe such a remedy will be beneficial nationally, but will lick that candidate in his personal district.

The senator or representative who will jeopardize his own chance of re-election, right where he lives, on account of any national consideration (even if he believes in it on a broad scale) is a "rara avis."

* * *

F. D. R.'S PROBLEM

Congressman No. 1, let us say, has no particular interest in Congressman No. 2's problem, nor has Congressman No. 2 any interest in Congressman No. 1's problem.

Yet No. 1 will help No. 2 if No. 2 will help No. 1.

President Roosevelt's interest is nation-wide, but it is not cohesive.

Other interests, in part in sympathy with him, nevertheless combine against him.

F. D.'s cause lacks unity.

* * *

HAPPY G. O. P. GROUP

Happy the G. O. P. group in congress!

It has, internally, among and between John D. M. Hamilton, Herbert Hoover, Alf M. Landon, Ham Fish, Glenn Frank and others certain conflicts, but they are not basic.

To the contrary, they admit of some agreements with the Democrats.

In short, there is an alliance between Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats.

* * *

A DO-NOTHING CONGRESS

Undoubtedly it means another stale-mate at the 1938 congressional session, as at the last extra session.

There will not be any legislation to mention.

But it will be a democratic (with a little "d") session.

The executive power will be stepped on.

It will not get anything that it has asked for.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Sunday, Dec. 30, 1917.

Mansfield Lutheran ministers were taking part in dedication of new St. Paul's Lutheran church at Marion.

Richland County Boy Scout council was organized.

Miss Anna Sattler, student at Ohio Wesleyan university, was visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. G. P. Sattler.

Arba Hawk was home from Camp Sheridan on a short furlough.

Louis D. Barr spoke on Red Cross work at Clay church, Franklin township.

Charles Amsbaugh and family moved from Bellville to Mansfield.

Mrs. Louie Mateer returned from extended visit with son in Boston.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, Dec. 30, 1932.

Frank Beverstock, Auto club secretary, joined Al Smith in celebrating birthday anniversary. Both were born Dec. 30, 1873.

Mansfield Shrine club members entertained their wives at dinner dance at Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Samuel Miller, 68, Mansfield tailor for 50 years, died at home of relatives in Plymouth.

Boyd Wierman received official notification of appointment as resident state highway engineer.

Mansfield high basketball team lost first N. C. O. game, being beaten by Ashland, 36-22, at Ashland.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

A New Year's Gift to America . . . Cleaner Politics, Finer Patriotism.

(Today you find more of the flood of remarkable answers that poured in when we asked Young America—"IF YOU WERE SANTA CLAUS, WHAT GIFT WOULD YOU BRING THIS NATION?" As the dawn of a New Year draws near, how does Young America feel about its country? Here's how!)

* * *

WHO says that Young America "isn't politically minded"?

Actually, there's nothing that so excites and inflames a bright American youngster as a question of public policy, if you once put it in terms which he can feel and relate to his own lively desires.

Politicians and patriots don't always have bald heads and bulging silhouettes. They may be as pink and dimpled as little seventeen-year-old Cecilia Salem of Peabody, Mass., who'd like to give her country a New Year's gift of—A BROOMSTICK! Surprised? So was I. But Cecilia speedily explains:

"A BROOMSTICK LARGE ENOUGH TO SWEEP OUT ALL THE CROOKED POLITICIANS WHO ARE ROBBING AND WRECKING AMERICA FOR THEIR OWN MONEY AND POWER.

"For years America has been paralyzed and poisoned by these despicable parasites who cloak their rackets under a mask of good-will. They fix elections, bribe public officials, cash in on every big federal or state deal, dictate to Washington and Labor and make a laughing stock of our national honor.

"If America is to live, the crooked politician is to die. How I wish I could sweep him away, with one stroke of my broomstick!"

* * *

THEN comes Elvina F. King of Glendale, N. Y., who believes that America needs a gift of "MORE RESPECT FOR THE SUPREME COURT."

"My Dear Miss Robinson:

"Were I Santa Claus, I could bring the United States no finer gift than re-establishment of our regard for the United States Supreme Court.

"It has become the accepted thing to speak disparagingly of the 'nine old men' and to criticize every decision adverse to the government. When the Supreme Court has upheld the New Deal, it has been claimed that its members are afraid of possible court-packing.

"The charge that the Supreme Court has assumed the power to declare acts of Congress and state legislatures unconstitutional is refuted by a perusal of the Constitution of the United States—Article III, Section 2, clause 2. The Supreme Court merely interprets the laws; it cannot write them. If the Congress or any other legislative body has been bold enough to deprive the citizenry or any portion of it of its inalienable rights, then certainly there must be some court of law empowered to invalidate the action.

"If I were Santa Claus and had sufficient room left in my bag, I should like to bring several other gifts. For the Congress, I should choose INTELLIGENCE . . . for the Chief Executive, RESTRAINT . . . and for the people at large —some good, old-fashioned COMMON SENSE."

That's telling them, little sister.

* * *

AND here's Lauretta Chapman of Los Angeles, Calif., with an enlarged plea for Bigger n' Better Patriotism. She writes:

"What America needs is a hefty bundle of PATRIOTISM. Not the belligerent, chip-on-the-shoulder kind that mumbles about the 'dern furriners'—and is forever finding insults in every word, action and movement of aliens and alien countries. Definitely not the war-breeding kind of 'loyalty.'

"The Patriotism America needs is the brand that is based on 'Live and Let Live.' Hands off all foreign affairs. A shunning of all 'isms' except Americanism. It should build—not tear down. It should preach UNION. With Americans sticking together—all for one, one for all—fears for the country's future might easily be discarded.

"A healthy revival of such old-fashioned virtues as Loyalty, Love of Home and Family—and Patriotism—would make the grandest national gift imaginable."

And here's a rising vote of approval for that suggestion, Lauretta C.!

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

QUICKENED BY THE LAW: I will never forget thy precepts: for with them thou hast quickened me. Psalms 119:93.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL—

Handling the "Mad Dogs of War."

WHEN the mad dogs of war are loose there is danger to everyone. But suppose one goes in to meet them single handed—then, what?

Whether President Roosevelt realizes it or not, he has been going very far in shaping the national attitude toward Japan. The American note accepting the Japanese explanation relieved the anxiety of many Americans for the moment.

Perhaps not one American but who is aghast at the arrogance and brutality of the Japanese military leadership, at the destruction of thousands of Chinese lives and homes, the rape of a nation. But it is not over these that the American government sends its protests. It protests over the bombing of an American river gunboat and the firing upon its survivors.

The question may well arise—and has arisen—why the United States maintains gunboats on Chinese rivers. To protect American interests, that is the answer. To protect American investments is the more correct answer.

If gunboats are needed also to protect American nationals, then gunboats would be needed at the ports of nearly every country in the world, for there are Americans everywhere—Americans who have gone at the behest of American investments. Every port of Central and South America, yes, even the ports of West Africa (whence comes rubber) would need an American gunboat.

And not the least of American investments is in Spain. The telephone monopoly in Spain belongs to an American company—International Telephone & Telegraph. It has Americans working for it. Its skyscraper in the heart of Madrid has been bombed innumerable times by Fascist planes.

And there have been terrible atrocities in Spain, too. The Loyalists have pleaded to the world to come to their rescue, to save them from the Fascists. But the United States has kept far away from Spain—withdrew all its warships from that vicinity.

And why? Spain is not in the American political sphere. Japan and China are. Japan looms as a mighty contender to the United States and the entire western world. Japan may amalgamate all the Orient and sit astride a quarter of the world.

* * *

YET—

There are, however, many huts. The nationalism that has made demons of many nations may in the end destroy them. Our danger is that we may generate a similar nationalism in our own country—and join in the destruction of civilization. A "stern" and "strong" staud may do just that. It must be remembered that the United States was "stern" and "strong" with Germany, too—and that democracy was not saved.

Japan's nationalism, carried to an inflamed extreme, may meet a match in China's nationalism, renewed by hatred of Japan. The tinder may carry back to Japan and set the Nipponese empire ablaze with revolt.

(The German revolt of 1918 would have carried on possibly into a real democracy if the allied powers had not united to crush the German nation.)

There really may be only one move that could keep the Japanese militarists in power—"strong" action by the United States. Then the militarists could say to the Japanese people, "There you are! We must save you from the colossus of the west—America!"

* * *

AND HERE'S A PARADOX

Democracy in central Europe may be saved, paradoxically by nationalistic uprisings and the Japanese march through China.

Great Britain evidently had promised the German Nazis a free hand in central Europe, to quiet Hitler and win him away from Mussolini. And Hitler, much to Mussolini's chagrin, has been drawing closer to Britain—an alliance he much prefers over the one with bankrupt Italy.

But, then, there has been France. She has been observing all this with fear. She did not open her borders for aid to the Loyalists in Spain—when Britain said "no." She has cooled in her alliance with the Soviet Union—at Britain's word. But she could not possibly permit the invasion of Czechoslovaki by Germany—even at Britain's word—and invite her own doom.

France has had to do Britain's bidding because she has mortgaged herself financially to the British.

But, then, as if fate itself were determined to right matters, nationalistic outbreaks occurred among the Arabs and the Japanese began moves that indicated they would seize British interests in China. Britain's fleet is not large enough to span the globe at once. Ships must be deployed to China. To send them would weaken Britain's lifeline in the Mediterranean—and give Mussolini perhaps his last chance.

Would France come to Britain's aid with her ships in the Mediterranean? France would—and one may rest assured that France now will have a great deal to say concerning any "deals" in central Europe

Keeping New Year Resolution Not Difficult, Doctor Avers

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THERE is just as much nonsense written and spoken about breaking old habits as about anything else in medicine, and that is saying a great deal.

New Year's day is memorially dedicated to a better and a different life, and it is a very good custom for those who need it. So I recommend it to them and, incidentally, take the opportunity of laying a few delusions about swearing off that make it easier for them.

The nonsense to which I refer which is written and spoken about breaking off is about the amount of suffering that ensues. You hear on all sides that if you have smoked for a long time, a craving for tobacco has entered into your nervous system and you suffer all kinds of tortures for the first few days and nights of abstinence.

This is not true at all. It is all in the imagination. Any person of the most moderate will power, can stop smoking right off and feel no effects whatever—except good effects. I know this, not only from my own experience, but from that of many others.

The trouble is that the average person who swears off tobacco or who goes on the water wagon, usually wants to appear a hero; he craves sympathy and he gives out a lurid account of his tortures, calculated to raise his character in the esteem of his listeners. He may do that, but he also scares off some timid ones who had just about made up their minds to do likewise.

There is some value in this emphasis which the abstainer places upon his personal nobility. It helps to keep his resolution up. If he goes on talking about his sufferings at great length, it makes him feel like quite a grand fellow in his own eyes, and that stiffens his will power.

Just Stop—Thats All.

Last New Year's I published a method of breaking the tobacco habit by the use of lobelia, but I added that a drug wasn't necessary, that anyone with even the ghost of a remnant of will power could stop smoking without the use of any artificial help. The thing to do is just to stop smoking. I was astonished at the number of people who wrote me: I had no idea so many people wanted to stop, and it was surprising that no one had told them how easy it is. The effect of the drug is mostly mental: I have seen plenty of people think they were taking a drug when all they were taking was plain bicarbonate of soda.

The same thing applies to the fellow who wants to go on the water wagon, but doesn't dare to because he thinks the first few days will be so terrible. They won't at all. They will be very enjoyable because he will feel so proud of himself at being able to do it. Of course, he must really and sincerely make up his mind to stop, and if he has gotten into the bad habit of regular tippling at some particular hour of the day, he will have to brace his will power and remind himself that he is a man at that time, but again I say it's all mental or, in other words, all in your head.

Good luck, and Happy New Year to all the resolutions.

Timely Editorial

Youth Is Most Deadly.

An indictment of youthful drivers has been reported. Drivers between 16 and 20 cause the greatest number of automobile fatalities. This is the report of the Highway Research Board after a five-year study. More than two million traffic fatalities were studied. The teen age drivers killed twice as many persons as other drivers.

Many persons—including educators—have the mistaken notion that the way to increase highway safety is to teach motoring from the mechanical side. Youth probably is better acquainted with auto mechanics than any other group. That knowledge does not increase safety.

What is needed in homes and schools is a careful training of youth in social-mindedness. That is inculcation of the ideas of courtesy and respect for the rights of others. Modern youth obviously is lacking too greatly in that phase of civilization.—Toledo Blade.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

Harem—"Forbidden."

Harem, also written haram and hareem, is steeped in the thought of sacredness.

Designating the apartments or that portion of the Mohammedan household reserved exclusively for the female members of the family, the harem was holy and "forbidden" to any but the master, to whom it was a sacred institution and its invasion by a stranger constituted an unforgivable offence rating capital punishment.

All this is embodied in the Arabic word haram, which was carried over intact into English and means "forbidden, sacred."

A style oracle declares not more than a dozen men in America know how to wear a hat with that certain dash—like Clive Brook, the actor, Jean Patou, the dressmaker. The majority set their hats too straight up and down. The exaggeration that gives Stan Laurel his comic effect. Victor Moore's best asset is wearing a hat that would be suitable for a man 75 pounds less in weight. By not carrying this disparity too far he achieves a more subtle effect than if he attempted broad burlesque. Ed Wynn of course, built his fame on cockeyed hatting.

Several presidents have been careless about the tilt of their hats. President Franklin Roosevelt and ex-President Hoover, for instance. Calvin Coolidge never seemed able to find a hat entirely becoming. Grant's derby and Cleveland's silk hat were the topics of music hall ditties and jests. The most gifted American hat wearer is doubtless John Barrymore.

Alexander Woollcott seems to have stepped off the deep end without a farewell bow. While he shows up for an occasional radio broadcast on some special topic, he is mostly incommunicado in a retreat in his college town in Vermont. No one knows the why of his withdrawal from the literary and radio scene in which he has been such a conspicuous figure. Some say he is merely tired of it all and wants seclusion for meditation with perhaps a book or so to write in prospect. Others say his drastic efforts to reduce were responsible for a physical slow-up. Woollcott's closest friend is Neysa McMein, the illustrator. A platonic friendship, of course, for she is happily married to John Baragwanath, the mining engineer. She has been his confidant for years, his only correspondent while traveling.

The most accomplished of the Chinese dinners are given by the Roy Howards. Various dishes are cooked exactly to specifications from recipes picked up on their many visits to China and served according to native custom. Those invited are expected to use chop sticks, wrapped in cellophane at each plate-side, a packet which also contains an individual toothpick.

Something went out of American life when the toothpick was emily posted to oblivion. While it may be gauche to use in the open, I prefer the unashamed method of skulking behind a napkin and gouging away while the face is wreathed in a beatific expression. Toothpicks from quills and sealed in tissue are as much a part of the meal in French restaurants as table wine. And every hotel in America had a supply in a little red glass at the exit of dining rooms 15 years ago. I rather hope toothpicks will come back. I'm aching to wear as a watch fob the one Uncle Alex bought at the St. Louis fair—a dandy with a peephole showing Niagara Falls in the center, a toothpick at one end and an ear spoon at the other.

I Hold My Heart.

I hold my heart securely, do
Not heedless let it go
This way or that, like careless wind
That purposeless may blow.

I hold my love, I do not give
It willy-nilly, nay,
It is too precious to bestow
In such a shallow way.

I hold my heart and none may find
My love, who do not prize
My gift, and this I think always
Is very sane and wise.

NAMES BUCYRUS POLICEMEN IN $10,000 ACTION

Ex-Restaurant Owner Claims Arrest Was Illegal, Cost Him His Business.

BUCYRUS— Damages totaling $10,125 are asked in a suit filed in common pleas court Wednesday by Ralph L. Zimmerman against two members of Bucyrus police force, Wilbur Kennedy and Anton Spaeth.

The suit was the outgrowth of the arrest Nov. 14 of Zimmerman at his place of business, the "Tops" restaurant at 1215 Hopley avenue, which is now closed.

Charges are made in the bill, filed by Attorney George W. Biddle of Mansfield, that the two patrolmen beat the plaintiff with their fists causing him severe pain and that the arrest was unlawful and without reasonable cause or warrant, causing him to lose his place of business. His clothing was torn by the officers, the petition also sets forth.

The petition asks $6,000 for the loss of his property and business; $4,000 for business and other damage, $100 for attorney fee in securing his release following his arrest and $25 for destruction of clothing

The Fidelity and Casualty company and the New Amsterdam Casualty company, both of New York, bonding companies for the officers, are named party defendants.

EXAMINATIONS SET

BUCYRUS—H. A. Barth, clerk of the civil service board, has announced Jan. 12 as the date for municipal civil service examinations to create an eligible list for Bucyrus police and fire departments.

From the list will be selected a city patrolman to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Captain James Ghist.

ASSASSIN KILLS CHINESE LEADER

Catholic Layman Slain In Shanghai; Terrorism Feared.

SHANGHAI —(AP)— J. Lo Pa-Hong, China's most prominent Catholic layman and the chairman of Shanghai's new civic association, was killed in the French concession today by an assassin disguised as an orange peddler.

Police expressed the fear that the slaying was the start of a terrorist campaign to prevent Chinese from co-operating with Japanese establishment of a new regime.

The assassin, who escaped, was believed to have been a patriot-terrorist, angered because Lo's civic association had planned to work with Japanese in rehabilitating areas around Shanghai.

EGYPT PLUNGED INTO NEW CRISIS

Premier's Dismissal Leads To Threatened Disorders.

CAIRO — (AP) — Egypt was plunged today into the greatest political crisis of young King Farouk's 20-month reign when he dismissed Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha and appointed Mohamed Mahmoud to form a new government.

Mahmoud, 55, Oxford educated and premier in 1928-29, started drafting a new cabinet, then decided to dissolve parliament and hold elections within two months.

The long feud between the palace and the government of the Wafdist (nationalist) premier already had resulted in a strike of 10,000 government railway workers in Cairo. Police were on the alert to forestall threatened disorders.

ECONOMY BLOC DRAFTS BUDGET BALANCING BILL

Southern Democrats Prepare Program Demanding Drastic WPA, PWA Slashes.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An economy bloc composed of 10 southern Democratic representatives, it was learned today, is drafting a detailed budget-balancing program for submission to President Roosevelt.

One member, who declined to be quoted by name, said the legislators had banded together to seek cuts in federal expenditures "all down the line."

He said each member would report to the group on a specific appropriation before the president's annual budget message is presented to congress next week.

Demand WPA Cut.

The bloc is considering demanding drastic cuts in the Works Progress Administration, the Public Works Administration and federal highway aid.

Members recently discussed the possibility of asking that WPA be discontinued entirely and that an annual appropriation of about $500,000,000 be substituted for outright purchase of food and clothing for needy. The relief appropriation for this year was $1,500,000,000.

Whether the 1938-39 budget can be balanced is a question which has brought varying answers among federal officials. President Roosevelt has said he hopes to balance it, but advocates of increased relief spending predict a deficit.

Mr. Roosevelt also has said he may make supplemental requests for more naval construction.

Chairman Taylor (D., Col.) of the house appropriations committee predicted today the budget would come "reasonably close" to a balance.

From other sources, it was learned the bill carrying funds for more than 30 independent governmental agencies, including the interstate commerce commission, social security board, Civilian Conservation Corps, veterans administration and the Tennessee Valley Authority, already has been slashed $3,000,000 below the figure recommended by the budget bureau.

DEATH CLAIMS A. A. M'KIBBEN

Native of Richland County Dies at Ashland After Year's Illness.

ASHLAND—Albert Allen McKibben, 73, native of Richland county, and resident of this city for 37 years, died at his home, 337 Washington street, Wednesday, after an illness of one year.

Mr. McKibben was born in Adario, the son of William and Cordelia Smith McKibben, Jan. 6, 1864. Besides living in Ashland for 37 years, he spent 14 years in the west, and for many years was an active farmer. At the time of his death he was employed by the F. E. Myers and Bros. company.

He was married to Elizabeth Tetrick in 1894.

Survivors include his wife; two daughter, Mrs. Ethel Lyons of Cleveland, and Mrs. Henrietta Fickes, of Jeromesville; two sons, Glen of Wooster, and Cecil of Cleveland; four brothers, Frank and Dave of Akron, John of Mansfield and Perry of Ashland; three sisters, Mrs. May Foreman of Cleveland, Mrs. Frank Krause and Mrs. M. L. Hetsler of Ashland and three grandsons. Three sons died before him.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. from the Shaw funeral home, with Rev. A. A. Hunter, pastor of Ashland Methodist church, officiating. Burial will be in Ashland cemetery.

ALPHA PI SIGMA HAS DINNER, ELECTION

Miss Frances Thull Honored by Sorority Sisters at Regular Meeting—Officers for Coming Year Named.

AT THE dinner meeting of Alpha Pi Sigma last night at the Susie Janis home, Miss Frances Thull, bride-to-be, was honored and officers for the coming year were elected. Miss Thull, who will be married New Year's day to Edward B. Eagan, was given a silver sandwich plate bearing the sorority crest.

New Club Names 1938 Officers

The initial meeting of the Hilkadot Helesmarcs was held last night at the home of Miss Margaret Bechtler, 36 Crouse street. The activities of the group will consist of sewing and recreation.

Miss Hilda Goettl is the newly elected president of the group. The other officers are Miss Dorothy Wilging, vice president; Miss Esther Boliantz, secretary; Miss Katherine Boliantz, treasurer; Miss Bechtler, reporter; and Miss Helen Thomas, and Miss Esther Goettl, recreation leaders.

Following the meeting the members sewed. The next meeting will be held at the home of the Misses Boliantz, 273 Harker street. The date was not announced.

NEW SHADES

Pastels have gone pale and demure. New shades promoted for resorts are "shy blue," "blushing pink" and "water lily" white.

Dark frocks are being trimmed with gold medals clustered in necklace form in Paris.

Miss Isabel Gerstmeyer was named to the presidency of the group. The other officers are Mrs. Ralph W. Andregg, vice president; Miss Grace Crotty, corresponding secretary; Miss Marie Kalbfleisch, financial secretary; Mrs. Richard Vahar, prelate; Mrs. Paul Watts, master of work, and Miss Phyllis Brown, sergeant.

This being the regular Christmas meeting a gift exchange was held and a pledge service was conducted for the Misses Lucille Antrican and Catherine Pfaff. Hostesses for the dinner were the Misses Rita Carroll, Annabelle Strong and Esther Pfaff.

Following the business meeting was a social hour with cards being played. Mrs Raymond L. Beal and Miss Kalbfleisch were the prize winners

The next meeting will be Jan. 4 at the Mansfield-Leland hotel with Mrs Charles Martin and Miss Marie Massa as hostesses The newly elected officers will be installed at this time.

Beta Kappa Tau Elects Officers

At the meeting of Beta Kappa Tau sorority last night Miss Thelma Dickson and Miss Mildred Hiligoss were re-elected to the posts of president and vice president respectively. Newly elected officers for the 1938 term are Miss Maxine Rimmer, secretary, and Miss Ruth Bollman, treasurer.

Miss Dickson was in charge of the meeting during which the Misses Florence Smith and Ethel Heuss were elected to active membership, and Miss Iona Hale was given the rank of inactive member while she is in training at Mansfield General hospital.

The next regular meeting will be Jan 11 in the Larwill rooms of the Public Library

For motoring, the athletic woman must have a pair of fur-backed, grip-palm gloves to keep her hands warm.

The white hat is high style for mid-winter wear.

Draped Style

Louise Campbell is shown here wearing a white dress that is ideal for winter evenings. The formal evening gown is made of draped white crepe and it is girdled with a belt of gold kid A matching bracelet is the motion picture actresses' only ornament

Strong Faith Will Cure Jealousy

By VIRGINIA LEE

Many times in this column I have tried to help people who were exceedingly jealous and suffered intensely in consequence. I have striven to show them that distrust of themselves was at the root of their trouble. But I always wonder if they have been helped, as I hoped.

Now comes a letter from one who has suffered from jealousy and found the way to help herself. I am giving you her letter as she wrote it and sent it to me.

"DEAR MISS LEE: In reading your article on the poor jealous person, I wish to give my experience. I had suffered for 20 years of my married life battling with the green-eyed monster, and within ourselves we can do nothing. I found the cure and for seven years I have had peace.

"I was a Christian and felt I could overcome my jealousy with my strong will power, but I failed. I prayed and failed. We quarreled. It was hell on earth. Finally I heard the preacher say, 'Perfect love casteth out fear.' I began to study on this line and I wondered how I could trust my husband when I would see him do certain things that bothered me. At last the perfect love came.

"Don't just trust your lover. But trust in God, and you will find rest.

"If you are jealous of your lover and he is your perfect mate, try this: When you see your lover with another woman, say the one who has caused you worry, just stop and be steady, and if you can feel his love in your heart, then let nothing disturb you. Why worry who he is with as long as you have his love? It may take time to reach this goal, but it is well worth it. This is a true experience. Hoping it may help someone to happiness

SILENT BLUE."

I hope this is clear. It is another way of building up confidence, having faith that your love—which is like God's perfect love—can cast out fear. When you feel worried and that awful rage comes over you, stop, be quiet a moment, and be sure that your love and trust in God will cast out your fear and give you faith and peace. Thank you, Silent Blue. Your letter will, indeed, help some tortured souls, I know.

* * *

DOWNHEARTED FLO: Write to each other, you and the boy friend, of course, Flo. You probably can get together in the summer time, or something, and if your feeling for each other is not just young love, it will last.

* * *

A TROUBLED DAUGHTER is 16 and she is always escorted to school affairs by her dad, who also calls for her after the doings. All her girl friends have boy friends, she writes, and it "cramps her style" to have dad escorting her about.

"My mother doesn't want me to go with boys until I am 19, as she did," she writes. "She is always telling me that boys are "bad" and now I am beginning to get the impression that all boys are bad. I am learning to fear them. What do you think about it?"

I think, as I have said often before, that your father and mother should get acquainted with the boys and girls you go with and then trust them to look after you at school affairs, only escorting you when you have no other escort.

You know your father isn't "bad," my dear, and other men are as good as he is, and boys are not bad any more than girls are. There are unprincipled and unruly members of both sexes, and you have to grow experienced enough to choose nice friends. Sooner or later you have to be on your own, and I think the time to learn is now. However, I don't exactly see how we are going to make your parents see this, unless, of course, you let them read this answer to your letter.

Christmas Pudding.

The original plum pudding or plum pottage as it was first termed, was served as an accompaniment to the first course of the Christmas dinner back in the days of the Normans. [The method of preparation was to boil beef or mutton in its own broth which was thickened with brown bread. Half boiled raisins, currants, prunes cloves, mace and ginger were then added. The mixture when done, was sent to the table with the best meats.

Favored Fashions

Easily Ironed Aprons Will Meet With Approval.

By MARIAN MARTIN

Both these trim aprons are made from the same pattern and because they are so simply designed and easy to make, we suggest that you have one of each. You'll thoroughly enjoy their neat and efficient lines and you'll feel very slim when they're tied smoothly around you. View A takes a ruching on the yoke and pockets while View B gains distinction with its contrasting yoke which should harmonize with the print below. Note the pointed outline of View B. One button in back holds aprons firmly in place. They open out flat for ironing. Complete Marian Martin Diagrammed Sew Chart included.

Pattern 9585 may be ordered only in sizes small, medium and large. Small size Apron A requires 1¾ yards 36 inch fabric and 2¼ yards ruffling; B, 1⅛ yards 36 inch fabric, ½ yard contrast and 2⅛ yards ric-rac.

BE SURE TO STATE SIZE

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marion Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address and style number.

Be ready for Mid-Winter activities! Send for the new Marian Martin Pattern book, and see its lively array of fashions—designs for every member of the family! Simple-to-Sew patterns interpret the latest afternoon frocks, party styles, matrons' flattery, and jaunty sports togs—to say nothing of gay outfits for growing-up daughters!—Fabric, accessory, and gift tips, too! Price of book 15 cents. Price of pattern 15 cents.

Book and pattern together 25 cents.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GETTING RID OF JUNK

WHEN YOU are building up a lead-throwing end play at a suit contract, it is necessary to eliminate from both your own hand and the dummy all suits which the opponent can lead except trumps in each hand and the suit in which you hold one or more cards in a tenace position. Your discards on the earlier tricks must be chosen in such a way that you get rid of the last remaining card in a third suit, or otherwise an opponent can break up your effort by returning that one for a simple ruff.

	♠ A ♥ J 10 9 6 ♦ A 7 5 ♣ J 10 9 8 4
♠ Q 10 7 5 ♥ A Q 2 ♦ K Q J 9 3 2 ♣ None	N. W. E. S.	♠ 9 8 6 4 2 ♥ 8 5 4 3 ♦ 8 6 ♣ 7 6
	♠ K J 3 ♥ K 7 ♦ 10 4 ♣ A K Q 5 3 2

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable).

Here South bid 1-Club, West 1-Diamond, North 3-Clubs and South 5-Clubs.

West's opening lead was the diamond K, which was won in the dummy with the A. The clubs A and K were cashed and then the spade A. A club was led to the Q and on the spade K, declarer discarded a heart from the dummy. The spade J was then ruffed and the heart finesse tried. When this failed, declarer was set.

South's discard of a heart was pointless. He should have discarded a diamond on the spade K, and then thrown West in with the diamond 10. After cashing his diamond, West would then have had to lead a heart or give the declarer a ruff and discard, which would have been just as helpful.

The declarer in discarding a heart instead of a diamond, leaving one diamond in dummy for West to lead to, spoiled his chance of forcing West to lead a suit which would be beneficial to the declarer. All West had to do in that case was to lead another diamond and allow South to ruff.

Weight May Be Increased By Calories

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

"AS I AM quite a bit underweight, I'm going to try to increase my weight by counting calories. I have a calorie chart, but do not know how many calories my daily diet should contain.

"Can you tell me how many calories my diet should contain so that the weight of my body will increase? FLORENCE."

If you are a normally active woman, your normal intake of food should range from 16 to 20 calories a day for each pound of your weight. If your normal weight, for instance, is about 120 pounds, your maintenance diet, to supply the needs of your body, should be equal to from 1,920 to 2,400 calories a day.

If you wish to gain weight, you should increase this number by 1,000 calories each day, until you have reached your normal weight. Do not make up this extra 1,000 calories with foods that are bulky and take up a lot of room. Make it up with foods that are high in caloric count, but are not very filling, and you will be able to do it without overeating.

* * *

"I've obtained such excellent results through following your instructions on hair care that I simply had to write and thank you. My hair is ever so much thicker and glossier now, and it doesn't fall out the way it used to.

"However, I expect to get a permanent wave next week, and was wondering whether I could continue using castor oil shampoos? Would these shampoos in any way harm the permanent wave?

"AGNES."

Castor oil shampoos should not in any way harm a good permanent wave. As a matter of fact, they should prove beneficial, rather than detrimental, to the wave. The permanent waving process tends to have a drying effect on the hair and scalp. If the hair becomes dry and brittle, the wave will not appear at its best, and may even assume a frizzled, kinky appearance.

Weekly or fortnightly hot castor oil shampoos after the permanent will nourish the hair-roots and the scalp, and will correct any dryness. Moreover, they will keep the hair soft and glossy, and will help to bring out the full beauty of the wave.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ A K 9 4 3 ♥ 10 6 4 ♦ A Q ♣ 8 7 5

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable).

How should South play to make his contract of 3-No Trump after the lead of the club K?

Nose.

The only way that I know of in which you can have your nose made fatter, is by plastic surgery. I'd advise you to consult a nose specialist about that lump.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

MY MOTHER-IN-LAW is never at a loss for objections to any household plan broached to her so I was not surprised to see her bristle when I told her that my going to New York would leave her alone with Jim and Katie.

"What's the matter with Richard, may I ask?" she queried caustically. "I should scarcely count my son as so negligible a quantity that I should be considered as left alone with the servants when he is in the house."

I choked back a smile with difficulty, for her arrogance is amusing when it is not irritating.

"Nothing is the matter with him," I told her, "except that he says he must go to New York tomorrow on pressing business, and will not be back for two weeks, at least. He ought to have gone today, he says, but he did not wish to show that discourtesy to Mary and Noel."

Will Stay Alone.

"Much those two know how anybody is acting toward them," she said, but her voice was softer than her words. "They can't see any farther than each other's eyes, but it's decent of Richard to consider them, nevertheless. But even if he is going, you won't need to worry one mite about me. Don't you think about getting anybody in here to stay with me"

"I had thought of getting Miss Whitlock for a few days," I said, wondering if the nurse, who had played her part so well in Allen Drake's masquerade as my father, was at liberty.

"Stop thinking right now," my mother-in-law snapped. "The very idea! A trained nurse to take care of a perfectly well woman, forsooth! I must remind you, Margaret, that I have not yet reached senility, and I still have all my faculties. I am perfectly capable of taking care of myself and of running Katie and Jim."

My heart traveled swiftly to the soles of my shoes as I visualized the possible ramifications of this last remark. Mother Graham left alone with Katie was a situation fraught with domestic dynamite, for the older woman was sure to "ride Katie ragged," as Dicky would say, and Katie, I was afraid, would be tempestuous in her resentment.

Offers Plan.

"No one doubts that for a second, Mother," I said, emulating the voice of a cooing dove. "I have only one worry concerning you, and that is the situation at night. You will be all alone in this part of the house, and Katie and Jim will be so far away."

"I can ring the bell and speak to them on that house telephone, can't I?" she countered, but I noticed with hope that there was a trace of indecision in her voice, and pressed my advantage accordingly.

"Yes, I know, Mother," I said coaxingly, "but won't you humor my anxiety about you in just one little thing?"

"What is it?" she countered with her usual caution.

"It's only for a few nights," I pleaded, "only until Katherine comes back. But won't you let Jim and Katie sleep down on this floor for those few nights? I should feel so much safer about you."

Her face darkened with disapproval.

Stay In Her Room.

"And whose room, may I ask, do you propose giving them?" she asked.

"My own," I returned promptly. "There are both a bed and a couch there."

She looked at me appraisingly, and a grim smile touched her lips.

"You are consistent at least," she said. Then her expression softened.

"I do appreciate your solicitude, Margaret," she said, "and if it will make you any easier in your mind, have them come down. But I'll see that your beds are made up with clean linen and blankets from the service supplies, and will have yours put away."

Would Offend Katie.

"Oh! I'll attend to all that before I go day after tomorrow," I said with hasty casualness, for I knew that if Mother Graham supervised that operation she would manage to offend Katie mortally. "And you don't know how you have relieved my mind."

"You wouldn't have had the slightest reason for worrying," she said obstinately, "but I don't want to cause you any more worry than you have already. You'll have enough to do managing Mary, poor child! Drat that old father-in-law of hers, anyway. Pity he didn't break a leg when that airplane came down. I suppose we'll be hearing from him any time now."

As if her words were prophetic, the shrilling of the telephone punctuated them, and when I answered it, I heard Philip Veritzen's voice.

Master of Ceremony at Wedding

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: We receive many requests in this library for information about weddings, and we are at a loss whenever it happens that an out-of-the-way question is not covered in your book. The one we cannot answer has to do with the responsibilities of the master of ceremonies at a church wedding followed by a reception at the house. The inquirer is very insistent that you can not have overlooked him, but we cannot find a word about him.

Answer: According to the precepts of etiquette, a master of ceremonies at a wedding is unknown. I am therefore wondering whether your inquirer means the sexton, the caterer or the best man or the head usher? None of these is a master of ceremonies but all four have duties which might be considered as belonging in part to such an office. The sexton has charge of the opening of the church, takes care of ushers' bouquets and sometimes he carries the bridegroom's hat and stick from the vestry to the front entrance. On occasion he might possibly direct the parking of cars, but these duties do not make him a master of ceremonies. If the wedding is in charge of a caterer, he supplies every detail of food and table equipment for the breakfast or the reception, and if there is no butler, he himself perhaps — but more likely one of his assistants—announces the guests. But these duties do not make him a master of ceremonies. The best man takes charge of the groom, sees that he is properly dressed and at the church in time. He takes care of the ring and later gives the clergyman his fee. At breakfast he proposes the toast "To the bride and groom." But even so he is not really master of ceremonies. The only possible person left is the head usher. It is his duty to see that the people are all seated in church where they belong and not allowed to sit where they want to, because they know this or that usher. The head usher also escorts the bride's mother up the aisle. And that is all he does. It might be that at a small wedding breakfast or supper or dinner, at which every one is seated at one big table, some one who talks well might be appointed to propose a toast to every one at table and perhaps might be called the master of ceremonies. But such a lot of toasts would be very tiring as well as threatening to sobriety, unless the toasts are brief as well as witty, and the responding sips are equally brief.

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Today's Recipes.

SPLIT PEA SOUP—One pound split peas, bacon rind, or one-fourth pound bacon, or salt pork; one onion, stuck with a few cloves; small piece of red pepper pod, salt, three and one-third cups irradiated evaporated milk. Pick split peas over carefully. Wash and soak several hours in three quarts of water. Drain. Add two quarts boiling water, bacon, onion, and a bit of red pepper pod. Boil until split peas are tender. There should be about two and one-half quarts pulp and liquid. Add milk and salt to taste, about one and one-half teaspoons. This makes three and one-quarter quarts soup.

SWEET POTATO NESTS—Four large sweet potatoes, one tablespoon butter, six tablespoons irradiated evaporated milk, one-half teaspoon salt, dash of pepper. Boil potatoes until tender. Peel and mash. Add butter, milk, salt and pepper. Beat until creamy. Divide into six parts on a greased baking sheet and shape into balls. With a spoon press a hollow in center of each. Brown under broiling flame or in a hot oven. Fill with creamed peas.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Dec. 31.

While this may be an extremely lively and stirring day, judging by the planetary operations, yet there are signs of peril, dangers, defeat and possibly bereavement. In any case there may be radical upsets, with much commotion and excitement.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is will find themselves in a year of important adventures, with change in business, aims, environs and associates. There may be turmoil and commotion in making adjustments to this new order that should result in surprising benefits.

A child born on this day may have unusual talents, with yearnings for adventure and romance. It may be subtle, peculiar and difficult to understand. It may lean to the mystical or occult, or other novel avocations.

Perfume stains may be removed from linen bureau scarfs by the application of peroxide of hydrogen.

Best Cough Remedy Is Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get the quickest relief from coughs due to colds, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll never use any other kind of cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really better medicine than you could buy ready-made for four times the money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, it has no equal. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

POLICE JOIN KILLER HUNT

Aid of Mansfield Officers Requested by Dayton In Christmas Slaying.

Mansfield police today were asked to assist in the search for an accused murderer who eluded Dayton police after killing a 46-year-old Dayton man during a hold-up Christmas morning.

In a communication to police here today, Police Chief R. F. Wurstner, of Dayton, asked that any suspects picked up carrying a .38 caliber gun be held for investigation.

He requested that police fire a bullet from the gun and forward it to the Dayton authorities for comparison with one fired from the alleged murderer's gun.

A description of the gunman received here described the man as 22 years old, five feet ten inches tall, weighing 145 pounds. They said when last seen he was wearing a yellow shirt and a plaid lumberjacket. The communication also said the man stuttered and had a decided limp of the right leg.

Chief Wurstner said the man was also wanted for several other stick-ups. He said the man was last seen in Lima Monday morning when he eluded Lima police after wrecking a car that he had driven from Dayton. The kidnaped driver was dumped from the car in Wapakoneta.

leased to "strict" custody of his parents.

The children were neighbors and playmates from their first school days. They were graduated from eight grade last spring. Their fathers are coal miners and have been friends for many years.

Before Betty June became a mother, the Chapman family moved to Detroit. They returned to Linton after the child was born and said they will remain until Judge Powell gives his ruling.

June's father said that if the children could not be married he expected the Chapman family to contribute to support of the baby.

The children, he said, often expressed a hope that some day they would be Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chapman.

Betty already has become efficient in the arts of a housewife. She is an experienced seamstress and has been making clothes for the baby for several months. She is bright and quick-witted and a "better than average student," her teachers said.

Betty said Tommy was a "very good boy."

"We didn't mean to do anything wrong," she said.

Until this week, her doll lay in the cradle where she now keeps the baby.

The mother and baby are in excellent health, he said. Betty June was permitted to attend the baby today.

Judge Powell said he was perplexed by the unprecedented aspects of the case and indicated that he hoped the two families would be able to make a settlement out of court.

Lacer said he did not wish to jail the boy and indicated that both families were agreeable to marriage of the young couple when they reach legal age.

U. S. RESOURCES DEFENSE AID IN EVENT OF WAR

Iron, Steel, Lead, Copper and Oil Sources Unlimited For Military Activities.

(This is the last of three articles analyzing America's defenses.)

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

WASHINGTON — The United States has a third-line defense which is by far the most formidable in the world—national resources.

This country possesses nearly one-half of the world's total supply of essential raw materials, raises practically all of the foodstuffs it requires and boasts a virtually unlimited manufacturing plant capacity.

It has an abundance of such important materials for military requirements as iron and steel, lead and copper, oil and cotton. Nickel needed for toughening steel could be obtained from friendly Canada, world's greatest source of supply.

The United States is tops in number of manufacturing plants, in transportation facilities, in number of inventors, technicians and skilled workers. In the event of war the production of fighting planes, of tanks, guns, high explosives and other weapons and munitions could be almost unlimited.

War Experience Cited.

War department plans looking to a swift mobilization of resources at any outbreak of hostilities provide for rapid stepping up of the output of military aircraft. These plans include estimates of the speed with which planes could be built and put into service but the figures as well as other mobilization details are a secret.

Aviation observers, however, cite the vast American production of planes during the World war when aviation was in its infancy as indicating that this country could produce as many planes as it would need.

A Secret Plan.

For soldiers this country can tap a virtually inexhaustible reservoir of manpower. When we entered the World war there were 200,000 men in the American army, one-third of them national guardsmen. Nineteen months later the United States had an army of 4,000,000 men, some 2,000,000 had been transported 3,000 miles across submarine-infested seas and 1,390,000 had fought in France.

Since the World war, military experts and key men in industry and transportation have been working on a secret, master defense plan for orderly mobilization of troops, materials, industrial plants, capital and labor.

It provides for the setting up of governmental boards to control industries, to co-ordinate railway, highway and airway services, and the drafting of industrial and technical experts into government service.

For the job of harnessing industrial power to military and civilian needs, a war resources administration would be created along the lines of the 1917-1919 war industries board with broader powers and jurisdiction.

Some Products Needed.

The president would be empowered to fix prices of commodities particularly food and fuel and to commandeer manufacturing plants and other establishments under certain conditions.

One of the first moves would be to divert labor and raw materials from the production of non-essential items to the production of those necessary to defense needs.

We are not completely self-sufficient in military requirements, according to the experts. Rubber would be one of our largest import needs although we could reclaim a large quantity in civilian use for military purposes.

The nation is dependent on outside sources for manganese, iodine and tungsten. A coffee famine might irk soldiers as well as civilians. An expanded sugar beet acreage, however, would go far in providing the nation with a normal supply of sweets.

Comparative Self-Sufficiency

	Iron	Cotton	Oil	Machinery
Great Britain	100%	45%	85%	100%
United States	100%	100%	100%	100%
Japan	50%	15%	40%	65%
France	100%	5%	14%	100%
Italy	30%	None	None	65%
Germany	100%	None	12%	100%
Russia	100%	98%	100%	70%

(Figures show percentage of its needs each nation produces.)

In addition to the resources shown on the chart, all seven nations produce all the coal they need except Italy, which has none. Counting colonial sources, all have access to adequate food supplies except Germany, which produces about 75 per cent of her requirements. (Estimates from Washington sources.)

DELAYS B. & O. TRAIN HEARING

State Commission Continues Action on Application to Abandon Line.

At the request of counsel for the merchants' division of the Sandusky Chamber of Commerce for more time to procure additional witnesses, the Ohio Public Utilities commission yesterday continued to Feb. 1, the hearing on the application of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad to abandon a passenger train between Newark and Sandusky, which passes through Mansfield.

Officials of the railroad contend the train is being operated at a loss of $3,000 a month. The train, No. 47, northward to Sandusky through Mansfield, and No. 48 on the return trip to Newark, operates daily except Sunday and consists of three cars.

Mansfield officials of the company said no protests against the abandoning of the train has been received from any Mansfield groups.

If the application is granted, the railroad would discontinue passenger service between Willard and Sandusky. There would be one train each way a day between Willard and Newark, through Mansfield, however.

None of the protestants' witnesses were placed on the stand at the hearing yesterday. The only persons to testify were company officials.

Attorney Examiner Eugene Nolan, before whom the hearing is being conducted, said the protestants desired to subpena data from the railroad before the case would be resumed.

It was believed today that it would be mid-year before the railroad's application would reach the utilities commission proper, after completion of arguments and the filing of briefs.

400 TO DANCE AT WHITE HOUSE

College Students to Attend Party For Young Roosevelts.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Automobiles will leave 400 party-decked college students at the White House tonight for a dance given by the president's two youngest sons for the ladies of their choice: Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., and Anne Lindsay Clark, blond Bostonian engaged to John Roosevelt.

Inside the executive mansion, still glistening with Christmas trees and bright poinsettias, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will greet the guests.

The president, if his work permits, will spend an hour in the East room meeting his son's friends.

CONTINUE PLAN

U. S. to Purchase Silver From Mexico, China, Canada.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced today the treasury had agreed to continue buying silver from Canada, China and Mexico at least through January.

The Mexican arrangement for January had been disclosed earlier this week. Morgenthau said today the same treatment would be extended to Canada.

He also announced that the long-standing agreement by which the United States promised to buy silver from China with that nation buying gold from the United States had been extended until July 1, 1938.

PLAN FOR BALL

3 Mansfielders at Meeting of Birthday Dance Chairmen.

John Correll, Atty. Marshall C. Moore and Arden Strang represented Mansfield yesterday at a state-wide meeting in Columbus of local chairmen of the 1938 President's birthday ball committees.

Plans were discussed at the session for the dances which will be held throughout the nation on Jan. 29, President Roosevelt's birthday. Proceeds from the entertainments will be used in the campaign against infantile paralysis.

Speakers at yesterday's meeting included Gov. Martin L. Davey, Mayor Gessamen of Columbus, and Dr. J. H. J. Upham, president of the American Medical association.

Correll, a teacher at Hedges Junior high school and head of the Richland County Young Democratic club, is chairman of the county birthday ball committee.

One-third of the world's oil supply is found within a radius of 150 miles of Houston, Texas.

Island, which lies in the Pacific off Los Angeles. Provisioned for two days, she sailed from this port Dec. 20 and that was the last heard of her until Monday when a naval flier sighted a yacht wallowing helplessly in the long troughs of the sea.

He thought her appearance strange, dove his plane, circled her. An auxiliary sail was up. On its canvas, sprawled in huge, wavering letters was: "S. O. S." He saw what appeared to be a body on deck, the broken stump of a mast, debris indicating the ship had been through a storm.

This was 180 miles south of Catalina, and many miles off her course to or from the island.

Wires Headquarters.

The flier wirelessed naval headquarters, which notified coast guard headquarters. The Perseus was sent at once to the position.

Tuesday a naval sea plane flew out and landed beside the yacht. The pilot had a look around and returned to shore where he reported to his superiors that he had seen a body on deck and that a man who said he was Jack Morgan told him the man had been shot to death and that he was the yacht's skipper, Faulding.

He reported also that the yacht was without fuel for her auxiliary motor and that all on board had been without food and water for three days.

Yesterday another naval plane, accompanied by two coast guard planes, flew out. The naval plane landed on the sea and her pilot went aboard. He returned to San Pedro and reported to his superiors, who declined to make public anything of what he had seen.

"This is no affair of ours," a naval spokesman said, "it is a matter for the bureau of investigation."

JAIL MANSFIELD MAN AS FUGITIVE

Buffalo Police Hold Pickpocket Suspect Fled Ohio Pen.

An escaped convict from the Ohio penitentiary, whose home was reported as Mansfield, was being held today by Buffalo, New York, police for the Ohio authorities, United Press disptaches reported.

The fugitive is Ernest Timmons, 40, who was arrested in a downtown Buffalo bus terminal as a suspected pickpocket. A check of his fingerprints, the dispatches said, revealed that he had escaped from the Ohio penitentiary while serving a 10 to 25-year term for bank robbery in November 1935.

E. C. Fuller, identification expert of the Mansfield police department, said Timmons had no record on file here and had probably been sentenced from some other county in the state.
